MACDONALD, HE ELECTED, PROCLAIMS UNITY

Sweepstake Agents Fined $500 Each With Premier Victor In Own Riding, His Party In Commons Totals 550

C. A. Steele and E. A. Morris Pay Heavy Penalty

Judgment Delivered by Magistrate Jay in Court To-day Aimed to End Practice in City; Fines Increased for Third Offence; Ticket Holders Also Liable, Court Points Out

Fines of $500 each were imposed in the City Police Court this morning upon Chas. A. Steele and E. A. Morris Ltd., convicted of conducting a sweepstake.

Magistrate Geo. Jay delivered judgment on the accused, who had entered a plea of guilty when arraigned in court yesterday. The fine was imposed on the grounds that it was the third conviction. Lesser penalties had failed to prevent the practice, the magistrate remarked.

On the suggestion of C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, tickets and money obtained in the police seizure last week, were confiscated.

"The purchasers are not entitled to consideration. They are all liable to a fine of $20," Magistrate Jay stated in ordering confiscation.

"These defendants are guilty of an offence under Section 330 of the Criminal Code," Magistrate Jay remarked. "It seems that they sold tickets for the distribution of property by tickets, in other words, they assisted in the carrying on of a sweepstake. They both pleaded guilty to the charge, but I cannot overlook the fact that there have been two previous convictions. The first time they were each fined $200, and the second time $100. Apparently the lesser fine was imposed on the second offence because there was an assurance or a suggestion that the practice would be discontinued. But it has not been discontinued and, therefore, I must impose a heavier fine, because the defendants know that this is unlawful. There have been two warnings and I am here to impose such a penalty as will not only be a punishment to those offending, but a deterrent to others who might be tempted to carry on the same practice."

WIDE DISCRETION The section of the Criminal Code provides that anyone offending under this section is liable to two years' imprisonment and to a fine not exceeding $2,000. That gives wide discretion to the magistrate, but as I said yesterday I do not think it is necessary to impose a term of imprisonment. They are both well-known business men and, apart from the present offence, are reputable citizens.

"At the same time the offence must be marked by a substantial fine. The accused will each be fined $500."

W. C. Moresby, K.C., defence counsel, asked the names of those who had bought tickets be given to the accused in order that restitution could be made.

RESTITUTION FOR PURCHASERS "The only honorable thing we can do is to have the money refunded, if possible. From the standpoint of the law, the purchasers are not entitled to sympathy, but it is our honorable duty to restore the money," said counsel.

As business men, he pointed out, Mr. Steele and Mr. Morris would suffer if those who had purchased the tickets were not given back their money. He remarked that even though they would be correct in telling such people that the court had confiscated both money and tickets, clients would be disinclined to do business with them if they did not receive back what they had paid in.

The court declined to order the names be given to the defendants, but advised Mr. Moresby that he would most probably be able to secure a list from the chief of police.

EX-MAHARAJAH INJURED Cape Ferat, France, Oct. 28.—The ex-Maharajah of Indore, husband of the former Nancy Miller of Seattle, was cut and bruised when his car was in collision with a truck near Barlastina yesterday evening, dispatches said to-day. His injuries were minor.

SOVIET DENIES TROOPS SENT TO SIBERIA-MANCHURIA BORDER Moscow, Oct. 28.—Dispatches stating Soviet troops were being mobilized along the Manchurian border again were officially denied to-day.

Baron Shidehara, Japanese Foreign Minister, in a memorandum forwarded from Tokyo yesterday to Moscow, requested Russian troop demonstrations on the Siberian-Manchurian border be discontinued. He declared the military operations "might be misinterpreted."

The communication stated the Russian troop demonstrations were causing an unpleasant effect on Japanese as well as Chinese soldiers in Manchuria. The Foreign Minister said he was deeply concerned.

MAY REGISTER EVERY EVENING

City Hall Open Nightly For Householders Seeking Civic Franchise

Registration Will Exceed Last Year's Enrolment of Licensees and Householders

Registration of voters for the city voters list will close on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, when it is expected that a larger number of names will have been added to the list than was recorded last year, when 1965 householders and licensees were given the franchise. Registration has been in progress throughout September and October, double the customary period.

To enable householders and licensees to register, the city clerk's office will be open this evening and on Thursday and Friday nights, between 7 and 9 o'clock.

About 400 holders of trades licenses who registered last year have this year been automatically given the franchise without registration.

The extra month of registration, combined with employment of a special commissioner to take declarations in office, stores and factories, have been factors in offsetting expected losses in registration. Many men failed to pay road and poll taxes when thrown out of work by closure of lumber mills and slackening of other lines of industry.

T. S. BAXTER OF VANCOUVER, DIES

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—The death was mourned to-day of T. S. Baxter, former mayor of Vancouver. He succumbed yesterday evening at his home after an illness of two months.

A resident of Vancouver for forty-four years, Mr. Baxter was elected to the mayoralty in 1918.

FEWER MEN IN SAANICH MAY BE GIVEN WORK

Federal Finance Problem Compels Cautious Relief Policy

Reeve Crouch Explains Need of Limitation; Council to Act To-morrow

Limitation of unemployed relief jobs in Saanich, to men without resources and unable to feed their families without municipal aid, is being considered by members of the Saanich Council.

Restriction was advocated by Reeve Crouch on Monday evening at an informal meeting of the council, at which all members were present. He forecast severe restrictions in federal and provincial assistance, both in financing and in contributions. Under the circumstances it was essential to immediately limit relief work to men without private resources, he warned.

Reeve Crouch believed that every effort should be made to save funds during the next few weeks, to provide a reserve for use early in the new year. It was possible that Saanich might be refused the deferred installment of $50,000 of its fall relief programme.

The work now in progress, to cost $75,000, was given government approval on the basis that it would provide employment until the end of February. If the Dominion Government refused to approve the remainder of the programme there would be great distress, unless work now in progress was forthwith limited to men in need, the Reeve considered.

A majority of the councillors present agreed to support immediate revision of the list of men eligible for work, and the matter is expected to be the major issue before the council when it meets in regular session to-morrow evening.

It is understood that the council will be asked to prune the present payroll to a maximum of 275 men.

RURAL CRITICISM Councillors representing the rural wards were the chief critics of Reeve Crouch's proposal to limit work to men without resources or credit. They argued that many rural landowners were in difficulties because of poor crop returns. Many were heavy taxpayers and were entitled to share work to be paid for from taxes. It was intimated that needy landowners in the rural wards would regard the proposal as penalizing them for the benefit of urban residents.

Duranleau Back After Europe Trip

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—"One of the things that impressed me most was the importance of the great cities of France and the British Isles place on their harbors as the vital element of their economic lives," said Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, back in his office to-day after two months' visit to Europe.

Mr. Duranleau found the people of England calm and confident. He foresees closer and more mutually advantageous relations between Canada and Great Britain as a result of Tuesday's general election.

BUS DRIVERS MUST SIGNAL

Three Fined in Court To-day For Failing to Signal When Turning

Drivers of passenger buses in Victoria enjoy no special privilege regarding signaling and must comply with the city by-law, which demands they signify with their hands or mechanical devices which way they intend to turn their machines.

For failing to perform this duty, three drivers were each fined $5 in the City Police Court to-day.

Jack Johnson, driver for the Blue Line Taxi and Transportation Company, charged with failing to signal when turning at the intersection of Blanshard and Yates Streets, explained to the court that his seat was so placed that if he stretched out to signal, he would lose control of the bus.

Sidney Hunt of the same company gave a similar excuse.

A. D. King, appearing for the British Columbia Electric Railway bus service, pleaded guilty on behalf of Harold Hanson, a driver in the company's employ.

All said their companies had ordered automatic devices for signaling, but they had not been installed to date.

C. L. Harrison, city prosecutor, told the court Chief of Police Heatley had given the bus companies notice some time ago that their drivers would have to signal.

The companies had delayed in securing the automatic signalers, he said.

STOCKS ADVANCE IN PRICE ON EXCHANGES IN GREAT BRITAIN

First Reaction of General Election Is Seen in Rush of Buyers

London, Oct. 28.—Results of the general election were signalled to-day by a burst of enthusiasm on the London Stock Exchange and a general marking up of prices of gilt-edged offerings, and industrial, dealers and brokers arrived long before 10.30, official opening time, and cheered heartily at the results already announced.

"We shall now be able to put our house in order and get on with our own business," said Sir Eric Hambro, British banking authority. "The way in which the National Government swept the country will once again give confidence in the country, and money will probably return here. Whether we shall return to the gold standard I cannot say. The whole world will be very much relieved now that the Socialists have been wiped out, for it will affect the politics of many other nations."

BUYERS BUSY While a victory for the National Government had been pretty well discounted during the last few days by news in British offerings, especially industrial, the members were not prepared for such a sweeping result. Buying orders appeared this morning from outsiders and, with practically no sellers, prices hardened, especially in

"KID" LEWIS IS BEATEN IN LONDON POLLING

Richard Girouard, son of Sir Percy Girouard of Montreal, was elected as a Conservative in the London riding of St. Stephen, Elmhouse. He had the enthusiastic support of the Canadian-born newspaper peer, Lord Beaverbrook.

"Kid" Lewis took another count. The former welterweight champion polled only 154 votes in the St. Stephen Whitechapel division of London and will lose his deposit. He was a candidate of Sir Oswald Mosley's New Party. B. Janner, National Liberal, won the seat.

DENTISTS AID MANY WORKLESS

Men in Pain Given Dental Attention Without Cost on City's Order

The dentists of Victoria have recently given free service to more than 100 men, women and children in need of assistance, but financially unable to pay for treatment, it was stated this morning by Dr. Richard Felton, city medical health officer, when discussing problems arising from unemployment among the citizens of Victoria.

The dentists have rallied most generously to the aid of persons in distress. Aching teeth have been extracted and urgently needed fillings have been performed, without charge, by members of the Dental Society, at the recommendation of this department," Dr. Felton said.

This department has a number of cases where dentures are urgently needed by men on relief work. In a few cases, in co-operation with Miss Lawson of the Friendly Help Society, we have been able to secure private gifts of money sufficient to reimburse dentists for actual out-of-pocket expenses. The doctors have met all such requests in a spirit of warm co-operation to ameliorate conditions to the extent of their ability," he said.

OPPOSITION IN NEW COMMONS SMALL FORCE

Against 550 National Supporters Elected in Britain, Laborites Number Only 50

As Returns Roll in MacDonald Party's Total Sets Great Record

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 28.—At 8.30 this evening the Canadian Press reported election of 608 members out of the 615 in the new House of Commons of Great Britain. Of the remaining seven results, two from Fermanagh and Tyrone are expected to-morrow, and the remainder will not be known for some days.

The corrected standing gave the National Government forces 550 members, Opposition Labor fifty, Lloyd George Liberals five and Independents three, the government thus having a majority of 444 over all other parties combined.

The standing by parties was as follows: Conservative, 472; gains, 207. National Labor, 13; gains, 13. National Liberal, 65; gains 26, losses 12.

Labor Party, 50; losses, 224. Lloyd George Liberals, 5; unchanged. Independents, 3; gains, 3, losses 3.

The remaining seven results, which are not expected to-night, are: Fermanagh and Tyrone (2), London University, Inverness, Western Isles, Combined English Universities (2).

MINISTERS RE-ELECTED Minister of the National Government who secured re-election were as follows: "In each case indicating the man is a member of the Cabinet: "Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, National Labor, Prime Minister.

"Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative, Lord President of the Council (acclamation).

"Rt. Hon. Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal, Home Secretary.

U.S. LEADERS WATCHING BIG EVENTS IN BRITAIN

Disarmament Conference Next February Discussed; Henderson, Defeated in Election, Chairman

Canadian Press

Washington, Oct. 28.—United States officials watched with keen but wordless interest the reports to-day of the overwhelming election victory of the National Government in Great Britain.

Surprise was manifested by some at the defeat of Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, Labor leader. There was some speculation as to how Mr. Henderson's defeat would affect his position as president of the forthcoming General Disarmament Conference.

Before the election, United States officials expressed the belief Mr. Henderson would continue as president of the conference whether actively in politics or an outsider. In the latter case, it was said, his position would make him more neutral at the conference than if he were active in the British government or its opposition.

Some were inclined to believe Mr. Henderson might voluntarily resign from the conference presidency.

The greatly strengthened position of the National Government as a result of the election was regarded by officials as affording a more certain opportunity to stabilize Britain's financial position.

U.S. PLANE HELD AFTER SEIZURE AT AYLMER, QUE.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Officials of the Customs Department were reticent to-day with regard to the seizure of a United States plane which was taken into custody yesterday while its operators were loading it with liquor in a field near Aylmer, Que.

Two machines of the Royal Canadian Air Force, transporting customs preventive officers, effected the capture.

The plane is reported to have come from Rochester, N.Y., and is said to have made several trips here recently.

MacDonald, in Message to People of Great Britain, Thanks Millions in All Parties Who for the Moment Subordinated Party Feelings to National Needs and Responded to Government's Call for Demonstration of Unity

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 28.—Premier MacDonald, speaking of his victory as a National Labor candidate in Seaham Harbor, to-day said: "I am very grateful to the country for giving us such a backing generally and to Seaham for this splendid result. I am glad to get back to work at Downing Street."

The Prime Minister to-night issued a message to the nation, thanking millions of persons of all parties who for the moment had subordinated party feelings and issues to the pressing national needs.

"A majority unique as it is gratifying which was given to-day must convince the whole world that when this country calls for assistance willing hands and devoted minds will always respond heartily," the message said.

"We appealed for a demonstration of national unity. The response has been far beyond the dreams of the most enthusiastic of us."

Hoover, Lindsay And Wells Talk

Washington, Oct. 28.—Two noted Englishmen to-day had what they termed "a most interesting and edifying talk" with President Hoover.

H. G. Wells, author famed as an outline of history, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, would not say, however, what they had chatted about other than mentioning the British general election and paying respects to the chief executive.

"Really," Mr. Wells said, "it was a most interesting and edifying talk but, of course, I cannot discuss it."

Sir Ronald was equally polite and uncommunicative. Out of deference to Mr. Hoover, he said, he would refer all questions back to him.

THE DOCTOR'S MANDATE

SOON AFTER THE RETURNS BEGAN to reach The Times office yesterday afternoon it became apparent that the electors of Great Britain had given the National Government the doctor's mandate for which Premier MacDonald had asked—and he will command a greater measure of support in the House of Commons than any Prime Minister has enjoyed in the last hundred years. The people, of course, did what was expected of them, what they obviously were bound to do under the circumstances, and did it about as thoroughly as they possibly could.

A Parliamentary Labor party which supported the second government headed by Mr. MacDonald with a membership of 289 has been transformed into the official opposition that will be less than sixty. About fifteen National Laborites, and between sixty and seventy National Liberal candidates, however, have been elected and will support the government as long as its policies do not conflict too sharply with the political beliefs they have for the time being subordinated in the public interest. But the ministry will not have to worry on this score, since the Conservative contingent alone will have a very large working majority over all other parties in the House, a factor which, sooner or later, will oblige those ministers who are presumably Labor and Liberal at heart to choose between what may be out-and-out Conservatism and the prospect of their relegation to the cool shades of opposition.

Although Britain has lived up to her traditions and met the emergency which the Prime Minister and his colleagues explained to her people, the country has yet to hear what the National Government proposes to do to maintain a balanced budget, revive the nation's industry, and generally usher in a new era of economic stability. When the National Government took office it declared that one of its first duties was to safeguard the pound sterling. It was Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden himself who declared that nothing short of a calamitous situation would develop if the gold standard were to be suspended. Yet the dreadful thing that was to be avoided at all costs became the policy of the government in a comparatively few days after Mr. Snowden's pronouncement. So that while the budget is technically balanced, the pound still is worth less than four dollars, with not much indication of its value appreciating for some time. Most of the advantages which were expected to accrue from the suspension of gold payments have been offset by the action of other countries following suit, or by the adoption of revaluation policies, such, for instance, as the course taken by the Canadian Government. It is quite probable, however, that as the rest of the world reads into Britain's verdict her determination to "see it through," complete confidence in her solvency, none the less in her statesmanship, will be restored. And any improvement in the country's condition, of course, will naturally revive sterling.

In its wider aspect the overwhelming victory of the National Government will have an important steadying effect throughout Europe. It was not a political fight in the old sense of the term. It represented the determination of the people to have a government at Westminster that would be in a position to govern without the bargaining that has gone on since the late Labor administration took office in the summer of 1929. Party convictions obviously took second place to this resolve. And if Mr. MacDonald had gone to the country instead of splitting with his colleagues in the ministry over which he presided, he and his followers, as a government, at any rate, would unquestionably have suffered the same fate as the forces led by Mr. Henderson. It would not have meant that the country had swung to Conservative policies—for Mr. Baldwin then would assuredly have been Prime Minister—any more than yesterday's verdict means that the National Government has a mandate to run wild. The electors had a clear choice between definite leadership and a parliamentary majority sufficient to deal with the national emergency in a national way, and the return to government by stalemate and the disastrous consequences such a condition undoubtedly would have produced. Indeed, any other verdict than that rendered yesterday might well have had serious effects, not only in Britain, but in other countries as well.

The election of this National Government, while given its mandate to cure the nation's ills as quickly as possible and in the most effective manner, does not mean that political manoeuvring has been given a long holiday. It is altogether likely that certain newspaper monopolists will try to press their pet fiscal theories on certain members of the ministry. This is not to question the good faith of such men as Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Neville Chamberlain; but it is to be borne in mind that as soon as there shall be any attempt from any direction to pursue policies which the Conservative members of the cabinet know full well are anathema to Mr. MacDonald and Sir Herbert Samuel, important decisions will have to be made. The Prime Minister has repeatedly declared he still represents Labor and as a Laborite he will die. That would seem to preclude his retirement from the government when that government, by implication, makes his position untenable in the light of his public utterances. Sir Herbert Samuel and Mr. Thomas also would find themselves in a similar position.

For the time being, however, it is fair to assume that the people of Britain will not worry very much about the political scene-shifters. They now have a government at Westminster which has got what it asked for and probably more than it expected. If it does not deliver the goods within a reasonable time, they will find a way, if outside influences do not find it first, of making their wishes felt. Meanwhile, the good wishes of all the world will be extended to Premier MacDonald and the men of his cabinet. The Prime Minister himself won a notable victory against

AN ABSURD ORDER

THE ORDER OF THE CUSTOMS AUTHORITIES at Ottawa for the examination at Victoria of the baggage of passengers bound from Seattle to Vancouver on the triangular steamship service must limit the opportunity those travelers will have of visiting points of interest in this city between the time of the arrival and departure of their boat, in some cases to a very considerable extent. That time is brief enough already, but it has enabled the Vancouver-bound passengers to take sight-seeing trips or to visit our stores, and that has been the chief inducement for Seattle people to go to Vancouver by this route instead of proceeding by direct service.

The proper place for the examination of that baggage is at the point of destination, and the ruling should be rescinded at once. The object of the order is reported to be the saving of over-time involved in the old system, but if the Dominion government's financial exigencies are so pressing that it must resort to such petty means of meeting them, they must be extremely grave.

What next in the way of freak decision may we not expect from the headquarters of our customs service? We suggest to Mr. Plunkett, M.P., that here is another matter with which he ought to concern himself as member of Parliament for this community. He must have a heavy lot of unfinished business of this kind on his hands by this time.

THE VOTES OF A CENTURY

IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT the number of Conservatives elected in Great Britain yesterday is the largest total any party has sent to Westminster since the election that was fought under the Reform Act in 1832. On that occasion the Liberal party returned 479 members, while the Conservative opposition numbered 179. In 1835 the government lost nearly one hundred seats, but still had a majority of more than one hundred. In 1837, however, this advantage was cut to forty, while the Melbourne government met defeat by the Conservatives under Sir Robert Peel in 1841.

Until 1885 the parties were fairly evenly divided, with seven Liberal administrations and six Conservative. The Home Rule controversy considerably altered the political alignments with the advent of the Liberal Unionists and the Irish Nationalists. But in 1906, the great tariff reform election and the test of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's policies, the Liberal party sent 376 members to Westminster, and the party remained in office until the coalition government was formed during the war.

In the khaki election of 1918, 334 straight Conservatives were returned, 344 in 1922, the election which marked the return to party lines, only to drop to 258 in the tariff election of 1923; then to pile up a total of 412 in the famous "red" election of 1924, dropping again to 260 in 1929.

It will be understood that there is nothing analogous in yesterday's heavy Conservative vote. It was an election purely to meet a national emergency. Party was only a nominal factor. Hence, the government may not last long.

BRICKBATS AND ROSES

WE WONDER IF THE GRAVITY OF the problems with which they have had to deal has obscured altogether from Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Mr. J. H. Thomas and Mr. Philip Snowden certain phenomena in the political drama which might appeal to their sense of humor. It would be interesting to discover just what their private reactions are to the ardent embraces they are now receiving from numerous elements which a few short months ago would have liked to have seen them hanged as high as Haman, or thrown to the lions in the Zoo, branded them as agents of the Soviet, incorrigible enemies to the state and other hopelessly wicked things. Newspapers which then could not malign them enough are now smothering them with superlatives of affection. All this, notwithstanding the significance of those gentlemen that they have not abandoned their Labor convictions, and that when the present emergency situation has been eased they will return to their former party affiliations. When that time has come they will again be banished with brickbats by those who now are smothering them with roses.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

WE KNEW IT
The Exeter Times-Advocate

As if he were issuing information hitherto kept a profound secret, Stalin, "The Man of Steel" of the new Russia, announces that "even under Socialism wages must be paid according to the work done and not according to the needs of the workers." That's just it. The world is based on justice. Plato 500 years B.C. discovered that the world was based on justice. A.C. preached this doctrine nearly 800 years before the Christian era. "The tools to the hands that can use them," Napoleon taught Europe. The plea, "Give the job to the man who needs it" simply will not do. The job must go to the man who can best do it. To do otherwise is to invite disaster. In the end, business and sentimentalism simply will not mix. If Stalin shows the Russian that his maxim will work, he will prove himself the races' benefactor.

A MANITOBA ELECTION
The Saskatoon Phoenix-Star

It seems assured that Manitoba is going to have a provincial election in November. Premier Bracken's proposal for a coalition government has been rejected by Conservatives and Labor and a government party caucus is to be held Friday to consider the situation. The government has run four years of its term and is under no obligation to appeal to the electors until next summer but conditions are such that it is believed Premier Bracken feels he should have a new mandate. Then, too, no doubt it is thought the present may be a more favorable time than next summer. The affairs of the provincial Conservatives in Manitoba are closely linked with the federal party, and the conduct of the Ottawa government, it is considered, is now under such a measure of criticism and disfavor that the feeling will be reflected in the local vote. What condition may exist next summer no man can tell.

That the Conservatives of Manitoba do not entertain such a view is amply evidenced by their strong and continuous demand for an election this fall. Furthermore they are well prepared, already having more than twenty candidates in the field. And in recent months members of the Bracken cabinet have declared that the government would finish out its term. If the caucus to be held Friday is followed by the announcement of an election late in November, as is being freely predicted in Winnipeg, it will be interesting to observe what has occasioned the change of view among the government leaders.

Loose Ends

A gentleman makes a serious error—we live on our island capital—and discover a use for chestnuts.

By H. B. W.

A GENTLEMAN, THE honesty of whose views is their chief end, perhaps, their only recommendation, has written me a long letter on unemployment, in the evident belief that I am a dangerous radical. His chief argument is that the unemployed of the world-to-day have themselves to blame largely for their present plight because they saved nothing in good times when they had plenty of work at high wages. This gentleman's illusion would be of no importance if it were not shared by many others, and some of them in high office too. And the truth of this matter is just the contrary. The truth is that most of the unemployed, apart from the maliffs and the professional bums, are no more responsible for their present plight than the rest of us. We are all responsible, every one of us.

IF YOU WILL think back a couple of years you will understand what I mean. During the boom, nobody in authority told the public to save its money. Everybody in authority told the public to spend as much as possible. From every side the public was told that a new era, a new system of economics, a magnificent new scheme of prosperity had been evolved, and that it would continue so long as everyone spent as much as he received or, preferably, more. From still greater authorities came the assertion that times were not yet good, that things must get much better. No one suggested that a slump might come and things get much worse. Why, governments all over Canada were thrown out of office because oppositions insisted that times were bad and that only their election could make them good. No government came into office in this country except on the promise that it could bring prosperity to a world then more prosperous than it ever had been.

UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS, with everybody preaching that we must spend to be prosperous, with the present rulers of the country asserting that they would introduce real prosperity immediately on being elected, with everybody told to expect better times right away, how could the public be expected to save anything? We were all responsible for the madness of those years and that is why we are all responsible for the misery which follows them. Anybody who happens to escape, can thank his good luck, not his good judgment, for so far as I can find out, no one used any good judgment in the lush days of the late twenties, when we were about to achieve prosperity.

SIXTY-EIGHT BOATS, according to the newspapers, were out at Cowichan Bay on a recent week-end to lure the innocent coho with the newly-discovered lure of the buckball fly. Now that it has been proven contrary to all fish experts, that the coho salmon will take a fly, fishermen have become slightly demented on the subject, which is the sure symptom of all honest fishermen. The result will be, if this fever continues next year and increases as it is bound to do, that we shall shortly have a shortage of cohoes, just as we have of trout. We have trout and cohoes on our Island rivers and now I have no doubt, we shall fish the salmon out of our bays. Blood sportsmen also tell me that there are few grouse left and George Pudgebury, who used to be able to bag a pheasant whenever he wanted one, says they are getting extremely scarce and seem to be confined to the female sex, which can hardly be true entirely.

APPARENTLY, THEN, we shall be satisfied only when we have no more fish, no more game and no more timber. What we don't realize on this tight little island is that we are living on our capital, not our income. This is serious, I mean I can endeavor to see our governments spending far more money than they can collect, piling up deficits and accumulating debts which will never be paid off. I can endure the loss of mere money. But when it comes to the loss of trees and trout and cohoes and the rocketing, long-tailed pheasant, then I really must ask that it be stopped.

AS STATED in a weak-minded moment some time ago, I never could understand the precise use of chestnuts. I had almost come to the conclusion that their only use was reproduction of the species, which also seems to be the sole use of some human beings. But to-day I found that if you know what to do with them, you can make remarkable use of chestnuts. You can make almost anything out of chestnuts.

THE LITTLE GIRL from next door having gathered a lot of chestnuts off the road down in the swamp where King, the Chinaman, lives in barbaric splendor on cabbages and ancient chickens, brought them up to Mr. Pudgebury. Mr. Pudgebury, during a momentary lapse, foolishly suggested that he could show the little girl a thing or two about chestnuts. This he proceeded to do with a knife and saw. Selecting a particularly large chestnut, he carved two eyes, a nose and a mouth in it. This head he impaled on a sharpened match and attached it to another chestnut, which was the chestnut man's body. Four matches, with chestnuts at the ends, served for hands and feet. Mr. Pudgebury held his handiwork at arm's length and pronounced it very good. "Blowed if he don't look like Cousellor Wriggledown," said Mr. Pudgebury. "He has a political look about him all right."

SO THE CHESTNUT MAN was forthwith christened Councillor Wriggledown, shortened by his owner to Mr. Wiggle. Pretty soon the little girl came back to Mr. Pudgebury screaming: "Mr. Wiggle's lost his foot. He can't walk no more." Mr. Pudgebury, being then occupied with making his little Jersey look up from the bucket and replied: "Old Wriggledown don't need to walk. He's got a car."

THE FINAL martyrdom of the chestnut stealer occurred a few minutes later. "Oh, Mr. Pudi Mr. Pudi," shouted the little girl, hurrying into the barn. "Mr. Wiggle's lost his head!" Again Mr. Pudgebury rose magnificently to the occasion. "That don't matter about his head," said Mr. Pudgebury, "he won't need it. He's in politics." So the chestnut man will be put to bed to-night in a big cradle, along with a brown teddy bear, a blue duck, named Belinda Puddleduck, and with two tiny Chinese gentlemen, but without arms or legs or head, with only a middle, "Wiggle," said the little girl pensively, "he looks sickish-kind of."

AIR CAMERA
BEST SURVEYOR

Brig.-Gen. Sir Charles Delme-Radcliffe Lectures to Engineers Here

Accuracy Heretofore Impossible in Maps Achieved, He Declares

How new methods of surveying by camera from an airplane achieve accuracy and a minuteness of detail heretofore impossible to cartographers and at a fraction of the cost and time necessary in the old land methods, was told by Brig.-Gen. Sir Charles Delme-Radcliffe, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.V.O., before a crowded meeting of surveyors, engineers and military officers from the Canadian army headquarters here in the board room of the Pemberton Building yesterday evening, under F. C. Green, C.E., M.E.I., president of the general of British Columbia and president of the local Engineering Institute of Canada.

The feature of the lecture, entitled "Photogrammetric Survey From the Air," was the brigadier's explanation of the machine invented by Signor Nistri of Italy which makes possible the transfer of a chart of the information gathered through the eye of the camera. This machine eliminates the old-style map draughtsmen and the tedious process of plotting and at the same time making full correction for error in perspective and distortion. The lecture was illustrated with slides showing the mathematical and mechanical methods employed.

HOW CORRECTION IS ACHIEVED
A series of overlapping photographs are taken by special Nistri timed camera from an airplane. Sir Charles explained that the lines for the map are taken not directly from one photograph, because such a picture is inaccurate due to the error of perspective and distortion. The machine, illustrated in the fact that the top of a building seen from a distance above looks larger than the base, because the lines converge as the distance from the camera to the building increases. This correction for perspective and distortion is achieved in the Nistri machine by throwing on a screen the image of two photographs of the same terrain taken at difference of angle because of the moving airplane. These images are imposed on each other and are switched on and off alternately at a rate to correspond with the capacity of the retina of the human eye to retain the image. The result is that most of the image on the screen is blurred except the line which is being focused on. This appears sharply drawn. By means of mechanical arms and an electric pen, the operator traces a connected pointer along this line in the image on the screen, and it is transcribed at a set ratio of reduction by ink on paper. The photographs are then brought into focus as many contour or other lines as desired, which are all thus automatically transferred to paper with a mechanical accuracy.

COMPLETE DETAIL GATHERED
Sir Charles pointed out that the eye of the camera, after making allowance for correction of perspective, can not lie, and is not subject to the inaccuracies of a man dragging a surveyor's chain along the ground on a hot day.

As to the vast amount of detail gathered by the eye of the survey camera, Sir Charles said that photographic plates resulting from one hour's flying give 800 hours of transcribing work for the cartographer machine.

GREAT TIME SAVER
Recalling the work of the Uganda boundary survey commission, of which he was head for the British, Sir Charles explained how it took a large survey one and one-half years of work under great difficulties under tropical conditions. "Now with this method of photographic survey we can do in a month what it took us a year and one-half then to do," he said.

CENTURIES OLD LAKE REDISCOVERED
Some of the work done in Italy under Signor Nistri's method was shown. A few miles from Rome the photographic survey showed up a hexagonal lake which had disappeared. This had been an artificial lake constructed by Emperor Trajan, and had been lost for centuries. As a result of the survey it has been uncovered and restored.

Other work carried on in various parts of Europe and in South America by the Nistri method was dealt with by Sir Charles.

Saanich Invites Hon. S. F. Tolmie to Open High Schools

New Schools Named Respectively "Mount Newton" and "Mount Douglas"

Premier Tolmie and Hon. Joshua Hinchcliffe will be invited by the Saanich School Board to officiate at the formal opening of the new high schools at Keating and Cedar Hill. The ceremonies will take place on November 18 if the date is satisfactory to the Premier and the Minister of Education.

The opening of Keating High School will take place in the afternoon and the ceremony on Cedar Hill High School will be held in the evening.

The northern school on Keating Crossroad was officially named Mount Newton High School, and the school on Cedar Hill Road was given the name of Mount Douglas High School.

CITIZEN'S FUND
To the Editor:—There have been several complaints made in respect of the use made of the funds of the Victoria Citizens' Unemployment Fund, administered for the unemployed and destitute of this city. Where water has been cut off and application made for the service to be continued to the city health officer, the answer has been for the applicant to apply to the office of this fund to have the amount in arrears paid; even on occasions where the connections (meter) have been removed by the water department—officials—because of the mysterious turning on of the water, the cost of replacement of the connection has been paid by this fund. When, however, the application has been made for other relief than for rent or water service, the request has invariably been refused with the statement that the fund was not for that purpose. In the view of this it should be of interest to the public at large and the unemployed in particular, if some statement of policy were made defining the use of this fund, for certainly it would save a great deal of time and annoyance to those who of necessity make application from time to time for relief.

It might also be worth while to have some member of the unemployed assisting the officials in determining the need and worthiness of all applicants. HANS KRAMER, 880 Craigflower Road, Esquimalt, B.C., October 27, 1931.

CHURCHES JOIN
IN CAMPAIGN

Three Victoria West Congregations Plan Canvass of Non-churchgoers

To increase the number of people in Victoria West who have active church connection, a campaign will shortly be opened to interest residents who, in the regular rounds of pastoral visitation, fall between the activities of the various ministers.

The ministers of the churches immediately concerned, Rev. Alan Gardner of St. Saviour's, Anglican; Rev. M. Sanford of the United Methodist Church; and Rev. G. F. Cox of St. Paul's Presbyterian, met on Monday to discuss the situation and to formulate plans.

It was decided to call for bands of ten or more canvassers from each of the three bodies mentioned and to allocate to each band a district in the area to be covered, which will be from Johnson Street bridge to Head Street. The canvassers will meet in St. Paul's Hall, at the corner of Mary and Henry Streets, at 8.15 p.m. on Friday evening, November 6, when the scheme of visitation will be explained and a service of dedication be held.

Simple New French Finger Waving Method

Gives Professional Results at Home. No Fuss. No Bother.

HERE'S a unique French discovery that makes it possible to finger wave your hair at home with professional results. The only way known, experts say, that is not gummy and sticky to use. That does not leave a white flaky deposit on hair and scalp. That is not affected by dampness or rain.

It is an exquisite liquid that's as easy to use as a tonic. That makes waving your own hair easier than it used to be using old-fashioned curlers.

Full directions, carefully worked out by French hair dressers, come with every bottle. They show you exactly how to use it through wonderfully simplified charts.

Thus, you're assured of perfect results every time. Deep, natural finger waves no matter how straight your hair may be. Waves that hold perfectly as long as two full weeks.

It is called Jo-cu Wavaset and is sold at all toilet counters. Economical to use—a month's supply costs only a few cents. Approved and tested by the Good Housekeeping Magazine Bureau.

His Future!

His future depends largely upon his health. The healthy baby grows up to be a success in life and a credit to his parents.

If your child has a cold, simple fever, coated tongue—if he is irritable, listless or has no appetite give Baby's Own Tablets. They are an effective laxative—safe even for the youngest infant.

25 cents a package at any drugist's.

NINE WOMEN ELECTED IN NEW HOUSE

Conservative Woman Defeats Sir Oswald Mosley; Prominent Labor Women Out

Canadian Press Cable
London, Oct. 28.—Nine women, including three former members, were elected to the House of Commons in yesterday's general elections, a check-up when half the returns were in.

Those elected were:
Lady Nancy Astor, Conservative, Plymouth Sutton—former member.
Lady Trevelyan, Conservative, South-end-on-Sea—former member.
Mrs. Norah Runge, Conservative, Bermondsey-Rotherhithe.
Miss F. M. Graves, Conservative, Hackney, South.
Mrs. Ronald Copeland, Conservative, Stoke-on-Trent—Stoke.
Miss Irene Ward, Conservative, Wallaseid.
Mrs. H. R. Tate, Conservative, Willenden West.
Miss Florence Horsburgh, Conservative, Dundee.
Miss Megan Lloyd George, Liberal, Anglesey—former member.

LABOR WOMEN DEFEATED
Three of the fourteen women seeking re-election had been defeated, and eight more were not reported. The defeated women were Rt. Hon. Margaret Bondfield, Labor, the first woman member of a British cabinet, in Wallaseid; Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Labor, in Middlesbrough, East; and Mrs. Mary Hamilton, Labor, in Blackburn.

Later, Miss Susan Lawrence, who was parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Health, was added to the list of former women members defeated.

With the Conservatives dominant among the women members of the new House it was thought in London that Lady Nancy Astor, a prominent figure in the House of Commons for ten years, might captain them. In fact, she was defeated by a majority of only 211. This time her majority in a straight fight with a Labor man was 18,204.

DEFEATS SIR O. MOSLEY
One of the new Conservative members, Mrs. Ronald Copeland, had the distinction of entering the House as the victor over Sir Oswald Mosley, head of the new party. Mrs. Copeland won the Stoke Division that had formerly been represented by Lady Cynthia Mosley, who had been forced to retire on account of ill-health. Mrs. Copeland is a newcomer to politics, for she was chairman of the Women's Conservative Association of Stoke on Trent for ten years. She is actively interested in the work of the Girl Guides.

TOURED CANADA
Miss Irene Ward, Conservative, who defeated Britain's first woman cabinet minister, Rt. Hon. Margaret Bondfield, toured Canada at one time, lecturing on British industrial policies. Her husband, Mr. J. D. Taylor, is a former member of the House of Commons.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Welch, of Balmoral Road, have visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Murray, of Penitence, B.C.

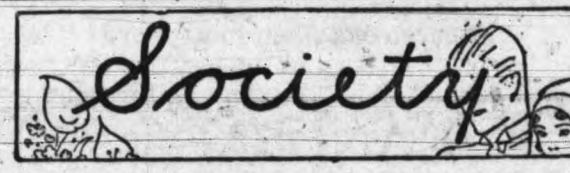

Mrs. C. C. Craddock of North Pender Island, accompanied by her two children, is spending a couple of weeks in Victoria and is staying at the Guest House, Oak Bay.

Mrs. M. B. Isaacs and her son, Mr. Irwin Isaacs, who are staying at the Beach Hotel, will leave on Sunday for California, where they will spend the winter months.

SEES HUSBAND BADLY DEFEATED

Lady Cynthia Mosley, daughter of the late Lord Carson, and former M.P. for Stoke division, who retired on account of ill-health, saw her husband badly defeated in her old constituency in the British general election yesterday by Mrs. Ronald Copeland, Conservative. Sir Oswald was the leader of the New Party and he, in common with the rest of his supporters, went down to defeat before the National Government party.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Pattinson have returned to their home in Victoria after visiting Mrs. Pattinson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. McCall, in Kamloops.

Miss Jessie Buchanan of Vancouver, has arrived in the city and is the guest of Mrs. Thornton Fell, "Foren," Foul Bay Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Welch, of Balmoral Road, have visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Murray, of Penitence, B.C.

Mrs. C. C. Craddock of North Pender Island, accompanied by her two children, is spending a couple of weeks in Victoria and is staying at the Guest House, Oak Bay.

Mrs. M. B. Isaacs and her son, Mr. Irwin Isaacs, who are staying at the Beach Hotel, will leave on Sunday for California, where they will spend the winter months.

Captain and Mrs. Maurice Wingfield have moved into their new home on Belmont Road, at the entrance to Hatter Park, the estate of Mrs. Wingfield's mother, Mrs. Dunsmuir.

Mrs. R. Lowe, and children, who have been spending a number of weeks in Victoria as the guests of Mrs. Lowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowker, Beach Drive, left on Monday for their home in Vancouver.

Miss Phyllis Pendray, Beach Drive, who has been visiting in Vancouver for the last few days at the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Cummins, will return to her home in Victoria to-morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Becker of Spokane, who have been spending the last few days in Victoria at the guest of House, Oak Bay, left to-day for the Mainland en route to their home in Spokane.

Mrs. Mary Campbell, Linden Avenue, entertained at tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. C. I. Edwards, who will leave to-morrow for Ottawa, to which city Commander Edwards has been transferred from Esquimalt.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Griffin, "Hillcrest," Glenford Avenue, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Ena Hilda, to Mr. Fred Marconi, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Marconi, Old West Road, Saanich. The wedding will take place in November.

Mrs. W. M. Carnahan has returned to her home in Victoria from Salt Spring Island, where she has been spending a few days as the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. McGregor Macintosh, at "Blue Gates."

Mrs. J. C. I. Edwards and her father, Mr. Symonds, will leave to-morrow for the Mainland en route to Halifax, Nova Scotia, where they will visit until they join Commander Edwards in Ottawa, to which city he has been transferred from Victoria. Commander Edwards expects to leave in the near future for his new post in the east.

HOME ECONOMICS COURSE OPENS AT UNIVERSITY

U.B.C. Governors Establish Four-year Course to Start Immediately

Step Follows Years of Campaigning by Women of the Province

Vancouver, Oct. 28.—That a course of home economics will be established at University of British Columbia was decided at a meeting of the board of governors. This step follows years of campaigning by women of the province during which approximately $12,000 was raised to defray the cost.

The first and second year work in the four-year home economics course has been part of the university curriculum during the past two seasons. The programme for third year study is announced and students who have completed pre-requisite work will be permitted to continue the course immediately. Seven weeks' delay in commencing the course will be compensated for by additional work at the end of the present session.

Recommendation of establishing the course and the outline of the curriculum were adopted by the university senate at a meeting in August. Final approval was given to the proposal by the governors Monday. It is announced that details of the appointment of a home economics faculty and the providing of equipment and accommodation will be settled later.

Third year course includes study of bacteriology, personal hygiene, organic chemistry, biochemistry and physics. Registration figures submitted to the governors show decrease of forty-four in enrolment this session. There are 1,998 students in attendance at the university this year, compared with 2,024 last year. New courses added to the Department of Education include a method in teaching of high school biology, agriculture and commerce.

A gift of $800 from Summer Session Students' Association for the purchase of books for the university library was accepted by board of governors.

Bride's Gown Was Worn At Court Of Queen Victoria

London, Ont., Oct. 28.—Possibly not many of the modern brides have the good fortune to possess that something old or something borrowed, as had Miss Lillian Mallett, who was married to Mr. Henry Draycott of this city. Miss Mallett wore a court dress worn by a friend, which had been worn by the wife of a German Ambassador to England when she was presented at Queen Victoria's court, during the last century.

The dress is of cream spotted net over tulle, with high waistline, and long full skirt, which forms a short train. The décolletage is in an off-the-shoulder effect, to which frilled sleeves are attached in elbow length. The bride wore with the dress a Juliet cap of pearls, beaded with orange blossoms, to which the long tulle veil was fastened.

Unemployed Man Finds Wife And Children Dead

Detroit, Oct. 28.—D. Blake Battles, artist, found the bodies of his wife and two children in the gas-filled kitchen of their home in suburban Ferndale when he returned yesterday evening after a week-end trip to Cleveland.

A note from his wife, Mrs. Allen Battles, forty-two, said: "You will be better off without a family," and indicated that she had contemplated such an action for several weeks.

Battles had been unemployed since he brought his family to Ferndale three months ago from Cleveland.

VICTORIOUS BY HUGE MAJORITY

LADY NANCY ASTOR
Conservative, was re-elected to the British House of Commons yesterday in a straight Conservative-Labor fight in the Sutton division of Plymouth. Lady Astor has been a member of Parliament for ten years. In 1929 her majority was only 211; yesterday her majority mounted to 18,204.

MAUDE ADAMS COMING BACK

Veteran Actress to Reappear in "Merchant of Venice" in New York

New York, Oct. 28.—Defying Broadway tradition, a frail silver-haired actress was preparing behind locked doors for what may be the greatest comeback in the history of the theatre. She is Maude Adams, who made her stage debut fifty-eight years ago as a baby in arms, who was the toast of Broadway in the gay 'nineties when she was playing "Peter Pan," and who vowed after her director lost his life on the Lusitania sixteen years ago, that she never would cross the boards again.

After the casting had been completed for "The Merchant of Venice" Miss Adams' comeback vehicle everyone was given the same warning. Business managers, actors, actresses, stage managers, directors and even her co-star Otis Skinner, were told by Miss Adams the show never would open if anyone breathed a word to anyone about what was going on.

Miss Adams' last appearance in Victoria was in Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella," some years ago.

Salem, N.J., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Isabel Craven Dilworth Tellegen, former wife of the actor, Lou Tellegen, is on a honeymoon to-day with Count S. Danneberg of Denmark. The wedding was last Saturday. The countess was the third wife of Tellegen.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

A LITTLE INGENUITY GOES A LONG WAY

Somewhat pathetic is the helplessness of a parent before the child who refuses milk by the cup. She is so utterly without ingenuity in combatting this stubbornness. She throws up her hands in desperation, for fear baby will starve, goes back to the bottle. "He just won't take milk any other way," she confides forlornly. Stuff and nonsense! That excuse is threadbare. If the child is eating enough of the ordinary, solid foods which should compose his diet, then he will be well nourished and, in time, may accept milk in other forms. It is not milk that he cares for, anyway. It is the comfort of a bottle. He should be broken of that habit at once. If he does not drink milk at all, for a time, it is better than letting him satisfy his appetite with milk and refuse the solid foods he should be eating.

OUTWITTING BABY

If the mother will make some conscientious experiments, she will find to her astonishment that she can easily get from a pint to a quart of milk a day into the child's diet without giving him more than eight ounces to drink. Let her buy one quart of Grade A pasteurized milk and use it exclusively for the baby. One cup can be poured out for breakfast. One-half of this is used to cook baby's morning cereal, one-fourth of it is poured over the cereal and one-fourth of it is left to drink, by the cup, if the baby will accept it. If not, let it go.

At noon the child may be given egg, meat, chicken, fish, or cottage cheese. Ordinary helpings of these are the equivalent in nourishment to five-eighths of a cup of milk. That is, all of the ordinary servings amount to about 100 calories. So baby gets just as much nourishment in these other foods as he does in his cup of milk, and he gets a larger proportion of protein.

At least one-half cup of milk can be utilized to make an appetizing pudding of bread or tapioca or cornstarch, or a whole cup of it may be used in junket or custard.

The third cup may be offered at the mid-afternoon lunch. A small glass of milk with two crackers is almost always acceptable to the child. If he won't have it plain, try flavoring it with a teaspoonful of cocoa, or a tablespoon of orange, pineapple or apricot juice. In fact, any fruit flavoring will alter its usual taste and appearance. Sometimes the use of straw, through which baby can sip the milk, or of colored glasses or tiny cups will interest him. Some way can be devised which will make this cup of milk acceptable.

At night the fourth cup can be used exactly the same as the first one; in and over the cereal. Perhaps one-half cup of that initial quart has been unaccounted for, nothing to make a fuss about. And that is no excuse at all for returning to bottles.

CO-EDS' "DATES" ARE EXPENSIVE

But Chicago Girls Indignantly Refuse to Pay Half the Cost

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Should the girl pay half the cost of the date? No—the reply coming en masse from the co-eds of the University of Chicago and Northwestern University of Evanston, in reply to a suggestion made by President George Thomas of the University of Utah.

"Why should we?" asked June Mason, secretary of Northwestern University's junior class. "We never have, we never should, and we never will."

And the cost, they agreed, is from $5 to $10 for the average date, including theatre tickets, dining and dancing.

DRINKING GLASS OF SAINT PRIZED

Historic Relic Recalled By Anniversary of St. Elizabeth, "Tannhauser" Heroine

Coburg, Germany, Oct. 28.—The approaching celebration of the 700th anniversary of the death of St. Elizabeth has reawakened interest in an historic relic, the gift of a returning crusader to his wife and once the property of Martin Luther.

St. Elizabeth's drinking glass, a vessel of heavy smoked glass attributed to Egyptian workmanship, is one of the most prized items in the art collection of the Princess of Coburg in the historic castle of Veste Coburg. It is adorned with an ornamental design and stands upon an irregular base.

Louis IV, landgrave of Thuringia, brought it back from a crusade and gave it to Elizabeth, his wife. When she was driven from their castle, the Wartburg, in Eisenach, by her brother-in-law after her husband's death, the glass was left behind.

Later the glass came into the possession of Elector Frederick the Wise of Wittenberg, who bequeathed it to Martin Luther. The leader of the Reformation gave it to the owner of Veste Coburg in appreciation of the hospitality extended to him when on his way to the diet of Augsburg. It has remained in Veste Coburg ever since.

Elizabeth, who devoted her last years and fortune to caring for the poor, was canonized by Pope Gregory IX shortly after her death, November 19, 1231.

One of the legends of her piety is the story of the miracle of the roses. Her husband, seeking her with a huge bundle of bread intended for the poor, sought to reprimand her for her lavish giving. At his demand she opened the package. The bread had turned to roses.

Elizabeth is the heroine of Wagner's opera "Tannhauser."

Buy a shirt with that $3 you save

This is merely a suggestion. Spend the money any way you wish. But remember that Listerine Tooth Paste saves $3 yearly for each member of the family.

A million men choose this Tooth Paste

Listerine Tooth Paste gets results. It does its job quickly—thoroughly—permanently.

Tobacco stains disappear like magic. Tartar is removed in a jiffy, and discolorations from other sources soon vanish. The teeth whiten, the enamel acquires a lasting brilliance, because the teeth are cleaner, healthier than ever before.

The cleansing agents in Listerine Tooth Paste are not like those in the ordinary dentifrice. They are hard enough to clean perfectly, and remove food particles from crevices between the teeth. But they are so mild that they can do no mischief to the all-important enamel surface. The refreshing effect of Listerine is also a characteristic of this dentifrice, made and sponsored by the makers of Listerine itself.

This tooth paste sells for 25¢, just about half of what you usually pay for a quality dentifrice. The $3 you save each year is worth knowing about, and worth having, too. You can figure on an equal saving for everyone in your household. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, Toronto, Ontario.

Jimmy McLarnin Appears To Be In Line for World Title Bout

Seems Strange Brouillard Is Willing to Meet Slugging Vancouver Boy

McLarnin Would Be Better Than Even Bet to Lift Welter Crown

Majority of Players in Major League Hockey Now in Training

JIMMY McLarnin, Vancouver's famous welterweight fighter, who has been an outstanding challenger for the world title in his division, is at last going to get a shot at the title. An announcement from Vancouver yesterday told of plan for a championship welter bout at Madison Square Garden this winter between McLarnin and Lou Brouillard, Worcester, Mass. who lifted the title from Young Jack Thompson, Oakland, Cal., in a fifteen-round bout at Boston on October 23. Brouillard, a twenty-year-old French Canadian youngster, smothered the apparently burned-out Thompson under a barrage of left and right hooks.

However, it is strange indeed if Brouillard signs to meet McLarnin. One would not think the youngster would want to meet a fighter of McLarnin's experience and terrific punching ability so soon after winning his crown. Of course he may have decided to be a fighting champion, something that fight fans seldom hear about in these days of non-title bouts and money-grabbing managers. It is planned to stage the bout in New York where McLarnin has proven so popular. As a matter of fact McLarnin will, beyond doubt, be the drawing card in a New York bout with the champion. If Jimmy does fight Brouillard one can be certain the Vancouver boy will be getting a nice slice of the gate. He won't fight unless the gate will bring him anywhere from $40,000 to $60,000.

As a matter of fact McLarnin had two chances to fight Thompson but refused the bouts because the negro would not step into the ring unless he was given practically the entire receipts. By Chabot 191, a huge, purple Thompson knew McLarnin was as safe as McLarnin was concerned, as Jimmy will not fight for small purses. He doesn't have to, he has the gate to draw as big, if not bigger, houses than the champions themselves.

Against Brouillard, a comparative youngster, McLarnin would have a better than even chance of winning the title. Jimmy would have the benefit of a great deal more experience and then again would be fighting the tremendous crowd that such a bout would be bound to draw at Madison Square Garden. McLarnin's punching ability has been well established and such a bout takes place we will lay our paltry bets on the Vancouver Irishman.

The following are some of the doings in the camps of the National Hockey League clubs: One Hamilton, former Niagara Falls junior star, whose contract with New York Rangers has expired, has been ordered to report in Toronto, where the Rangers and Springfield Indians will do their pre-season training.

Joe Simpson will manage the New Haven Eagles. The former Edmonton Eskimo, "Bulldog" Joe, will succeed Tom Howard at the helm.

Montreal Maroons are hard at work and Harold Starr and D'Arcy Coulton are with them. Lionel Conacher and Nels Stewart have not yet reported, the former being on a hunting trip, while the latter is looking after his horses at Dufferin Park.

Lorne Duguid, who shared starring honors with Earl Robinson on the Windsor Bulldogs' forward line last winter, has signed a Maroon contract.

When Nick Wasmie reported at the Canadian camp, he brought the Habitués up to full strength, for the time being at least.

Detroit has added still one more player to the roster, having secured Frank Peters from the Chicago Blackhawks. The blond defenseman was with Philadelphia Arrows, of the Canadian-American League, before going up to Rangers.

Coach Art Duncan and the Toronto Maple Leafs are hard at work at St. Catharines. The Torontonians are all in fine shape, with the exception of Harvey Jackson, who was recently injured in an automobile accident.

Alex. Levinsky, top of the heavyweights, going 212 in his uniform, Hal Darragh is the lightweight of the six-teen at 146. The weights of the balance of the club were: Chabot 191, Clancy 173, Primeau 153, Conacher 202, Cotton 164, Bailey 165, Day 166, Howe 167, Finnegan 169, Black 182, Gieseler 174, and Duncanson 207.

London's Tecumshas have been on ice. Seven of their squad of thirteen were at the initial practice, among whom was Art Townsend, 160-pound defense player from Grand Rapids, Minn. who has plenty of experience behind him, and is a rough, tough defense player.

Manager Clem Loughlin, Goals Herbie Stuart, Harold Hicks, Goals Howay, Dave Schneider, Roy Schneider, Boily Huard, Earl Kiloran, Mike Neville, Oliver Belinfante, Speedy Croh and Leo Quenneville are other members of the Tecumshas.

One Of Greatest Matches In Years Expected Saturday

Lower Island Football Association Has Selected Formidable Eleven to Oppose New Westminster Royals, Canadian Champions, in Exhibition Match at Royal Athletic Park; Match to Start at 2:30 o'clock; Royals Announce Starting Line-up

Local football followers expect to witness one of the best matches seen here for some time, when the Victoria "reps" oppose the New Westminster Royals, Canadian champions, at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday afternoon. The match will commence at 2:30 o'clock and with all other league matches postponed a record crowd is looked for by officials of the Lower Island Football Association, who are responsible for the exhibition.

Patrick Lining Up Circuit With Vancouver, Tacoma, Calgary and Edmonton

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 28.—Prospects of a western hockey league of professional status, including Tacoma, Vancouver, Edmonton, and Calgary must hang in the balance for another week.

Quickly ending negotiations here in hopeful fashion, Frank Patrick, president of the Pacific Coast Professional Hockey League, packed his grips and returned yesterday evening for Vancouver. He will have conferences in three cities—Tacoma, Vancouver and Portland.

Tacoma and Vancouver will be asked to join the proposed western league for the year 1932-33. The league will be asked to drop out. Bobby Rowe, manager of the Portland team, is suggested as president for the league. Rowe, bringing with him his experience and string of players, has taken as a step to cut expenses and avoid long trips.

PRAIRIE CITIES READY. Should the league materialize with Tacoma, Vancouver, Calgary and Edmonton as the members, Patrick hopes to open the season during the first week of December. Eighteen home games for each club is proposed, with two games being played on each trip.

George Stewart will be the big backer of the Calgary team. Should the league materialize with Tacoma, Vancouver, Calgary and Edmonton as the members, Patrick hopes to open the season during the first week of December. Eighteen home games for each club is proposed, with two games being played on each trip.

The Royals are bringing their regular line-up, which includes the majority of the players that carried the New Westminster club to their Canadian title last season. One of the highlights of the game will be the appearance of Jack Coulter, former local star, at centre-forward for the Royals. Coulter, a former member of the Victoria Garrison and Esquimalt eleven, has been one of the leading players on the New Westminster club for the last two or three years and has won much fame for his goal-scoring ability.

GOOD FAST TEAM. The L.F.A. have selected a strong eleven to represent Victoria in this important match. They have chosen a fine set of forwards, a hard-working half-back line and a formidable back division. Manager Charlie Lewis put the boys through a stiff workout at the Crystal Garden yesterday evening and to-day reports his players in first-class condition.

In the Victoria goal will be Louis De Costa, Esquimalt, one of the most agile and fearless net minders to ever guard a local net. He has broken the hearts of many opposing forwards and his reputation is well known by Mainland clubs, some of whom have tried to secure his services.

At right back will be Joe Crowe, Saanich Thistles. Big and strong, Crowe is an effective fullback. Joe plays his best when the going is toughest. The left back position will be handled by Freddie Gibbons, also of the Thistles. Gibbons is a good back who prefers to play up on the forward line. He is an outstanding defence player and the New Westminster forwards will find him hard to get by.

Eddie Viggers, Thistles, at right half, really enjoys playing football and is a real corner. Fast and strong, he has found his real place on the half-back line. Bob Preston, Jokers, at centre-half, is tough and clever with his feet. He has had all the training and experience necessary and has the ability to take care of Coulter. At left half will be Jim Crowe, Thistles, brother of Joe. He is a very aggressive and feeds his wing man well.

Small, swift and packing a fast shot, Harry Youson, Victoria West, will handle the outside right position. He is very aggressive and elusive as an angel. "Scotty" Stewart, Esquimalt, at inside right, is a tricky player with some lovely touches. He possesses a powerful left foot, and with either foot that fools the o-position. He relies on his clever feet more than on speed and packs a good shot.

IS HARD WORKER. Barney Burns, Thistles, the centre-forward, is a player of the day type. He is a continual source of worry to opposing goalies and takes advantage of every opening. Mike Wagoner, Esquimalt, the forward, is the educated feet will be at inside left. He has at times played forward in football and his bullet drives are the terror of local goalies.

At outside left will be Danny Glancy who probably knows more about football than any other player on the team. When Glancy plays the game as he did against Vancouver on Thanksgiving Day he resembles the finished article as closely as any forward in the Province.

ROYALS' LINE-UP. Word was received from the officials of the Victoria club yesterday to the effect that their team for Saturday would be as follows: Sandford, Anderson, Pindler, Trotter, Soddard, Delaney, Kerr, Soddard, Coulter, Hammond, Turner and Todd.

Women members of the Macaulay Point Golf Club will start play in a competition, match play on handicap, for possession of the Dunlop Cup. Matches in the first round must be completed by Sunday, November 1.

The draw for the first round follows: E. D. Freeman vs. Mrs. W. E. McIntyre. Mrs. W. Greig vs. Mrs. G. Silburn. Mrs. H. Curfield vs. Mrs. E. Wain. Miss Peggy Hodgson vs. Mrs. C. W. Lovell.

Mrs. J. H. Meldrum vs. Miss M. Rickaby. Miss J. Gordon vs. Miss J. Johnson. Miss W. Warburton vs. Miss W. Ferrihan. Miss C. Allan vs. Mrs. H. Wilders. Byes—Miss Phyllis Hodgson, Miss R. Bethell, Miss M. Blankenbach, Mrs. C. B. Brown, Miss W. Greig, Miss V. Beakes, Mrs. H. H. Lively and Mrs. F. R. Macfarlane.

Tilden and Hunter Beat German Stars Hamburg, Oct. 28.—Bill Tilden defeated the German Hans Neusslein 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 9-4 in an exhibition professional tennis match yesterday. Frank Hunter beat Albert Burke 6-4, 9-7, 6-2. Tilden and Hunter, in a doubles match, defeated Neusslein and Roman Natchuk 6-2, 9-7, 3-6, 6-4.

Entries for the Calcutta foursomes at the Victoria Golf Club close at 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Those wishing to play are requested to communicate with the secretary or the professionals of the club.

Defeating her opponent, Miss E. Fitz-Gibbon, 6 and 5, and then completing the round to turn in a score of 99 for the eighteen holes, Mrs. H. C. Bennett won the final of the Campbell Cup handicap knockout competition at the Colwood Golf Club yesterday.

Mrs. Bennett played steady golf throughout the entire match. Mrs. J. H. Richardson and Mrs. H. E. Brown were the other semi-finalists. Fifty-two entered the tourney.

Racetrack Betting Last Season Shows Decrease of $4,629,360 Over 1930

Increase Shown on Only Six Tracks; Total Wagers in B.C. Totalled $3,498,257

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Race track betting in Canada in the year 1931 again showed a marked decrease from the previous year. The total amount wagered in 1931 was $3,498,257 as against $3,927,617 in 1930, a decrease of $429,360 or approximately 11 per cent.

A report issued by the Department of Agriculture states that the decrease was general in all provinces and of the twenty-eight racing associations holding meetings in 1931, only six showed an increase in wagers. In the province of Ontario, where by far the largest part of the race track betting is carried on, all race tracks showed a decrease.

There were 122 meetings of racing in Canada in 1931 as against 132 days in 1930. The total for the province of Manitoba amounted to $1,635,000, and at Whittier Park, $1,465,469.

PRIZE RETURNS
Saskatoon, states the report, was the only point in Saskatchewan at which pari-mutuel betting was carried on in 1930. At a six-day meeting there, in connection with the exhibition, the sum of $179,702 was wagered. The total for Alberta was $4,632,100 for sixty-eight days of racing.

At Victoria Park in Calgary, where racing was held on thirteen days, the amount bet was $669,547, at Chinook Park for seven days' racing, $467,776; at Edmonton, for six days' racing, $3,844; at Carleton Place, one day, $1,396.

B.C. WAGERING
For British Columbia the total wagers amounted to $3,498,257 for fifty-five days' racing. The figures for individual race tracks being: Brighouse Park, $1,174,028; Lansdowne Park, $1,042,098; Hastings Park, seven days' racing, $600,595; Colwood Park, thirteen days' racing, $590,806; and Willoughby Park, seven days' racing, $384,739.

REFEREES FOR RUGBY MATCHES ANNOUNCED
J. B. Acland, G. C. Grant and Bill Ellis were named to referee the Saturday afternoon intermediate rugby fixtures, it was announced by Fred Caldwell, secretary of the local union this morning.

Acland will handle the whistle at the Victoria College—J.B.A.A. fixture. Grant will supervise the Brentwood College—Wanderers' game and Ellis will be in charge of the Canadian Scottish—Fifth Regiment's tussle.

All matches will start at 3 o'clock.

Voted Most Valuable Player

ROBERT MOSES GROVE

New York, Oct. 28.—Robert Moses Grove, who turned in a record-breaking pitching year for Philadelphia Athletics, has been selected as the American League's most valuable player for 1931.

The celebrated southpaw of the former world champions received the distinction by vote of a committee of eight members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, announced to-day by William J. Slovic of New York, president.

Grove topped the list by a wide margin. He received seventy-eight points out of a possible eighty. Lou Gehrig, first baseman of New York Yankees, finished second with fifty-nine. At Simmons of Athletics collected fifty-one, Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder, placed fourth with forty-three, and the great Babe Ruth, winner of the honor in 1923, was fifth with forty points.

Grove is the second of Connie Mack's great cast to gain this distinction in the last four years.

Carey Is Planning General Shake-up In Brooklyn Team

New Manager of Dodgers Announces He Will Make Numerous Changes for Next Year's Campaign; Realizes He Faces Difficult Task; Wilbert Robinson's Successor Amused at Baseball's Reaction to His Appointment; Many Think He Will Win Pennant by Stealing Flock of Bases

St. Louis, Oct. 28.—Maximilian Carnarius—Max Carey to the sport world—the new manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who is packing up preparatory to moving east, yesterday said he was happy over his appointment and eager to tackle the problems that confront him in the task of rebuilding the Flatbush baseball club. Carey, crack centerfielder, who led the National League base pilferers for ten years starting with the 1913 season, is mildly amused at the baseball world's reaction to his elevation to a managerial position.

"Everybody seems to think I'm going out and try to win a pennant by stealing a flock of bases," Max said with a smile.

Carey, now forty-one years old, let it be known he plans to make numerous changes in the Brooklyn club, but would not discuss his plans for the public, recalling "it takes two to make trades."

"Of course, it's a big job to rebuild a ball club," he said, "but I know all the boys on the Brooklyn roster, and they'll all hustle for me. That's the big thing in baseball, and I'm not telling you anything new when I say that."

Speaking again of base stealing, Max, who stole sixty-three bases in 1916, his best year, said he feared "this base stealing angle is being over emphasized."

"Base running, of course, plays an important part in winning games, and I believe the new National League ball proved last year the wisdom of changing the general style of attack, but you have to adapt your style to the players available. Don't take it for granted the Brooklyn club is going to step out in the spring and try to steal all the bases in sight," said Max.

"The world series showed the importance of speed and daring on the bases, however, and the Cards really club-won the series by the margin of their base running."

IDLE LAST YEAR
Carey, who succeeds Wilbert Robinson—"Uncle Robbie," one of baseball's colorful old guards—as manager of the Brooklyn club, retired to the bench as a coach for Robinson in 1929. In 1930 he returned to his old team, the Pittsburgh Pirates, as a coach, and was idle last year. He has a one-year contract as the Dodgers' new manager.

Frank Foyston To Manage New York Minor Hockey Team
Galt, Ont., Oct. 28.—Frank Foyston, former National Hockey League player and manager of the Syracuse Stars of the Canadian-American League last winter, will head the newly-formed New York team which will be entered this season in the Canadian-American.

It was announced yesterday at headquarters of New York Americans. The new team will train in Galt.

A number of players in the roster of Americans and New Haven Eagles will be given a try-out by the new team, however, and the Cards really club-

won the series by the margin of their base running."

Bids Good-bye To Old Friend
The international board of June 14, 1930, says the word "stand" means that the goalkeeper must not move his feet until the penalty kick has been taken. If, on taking the penalty kick, the ball rebounds from the goal posts or crossesbar and is played by the kicker a second time, a free kick must be awarded. A place kick, a free kick or a penalty kick must not be taken until the referee has given a signal for the same.

The laws of the game are intended to provide that games should be played with as little interference as possible. Constant whistling for trifling and doubtful breaches produces bad feeling and loss of temper on the part of players and spoils the pleasure of spectators.

MUST AWARD PENALTY
A penalty kick can be awarded irrespective of the position of the ball, if in the field of play at the time the offence is committed. If the goalkeeper has been changed without the referee being notified and the new goalkeeper handles the ball within the penalty area a penalty kick must be awarded.

If a player deliberately trips an opponent who is standing in an off-side position within the penalty area and who does not attempt to play the ball or obstruct, a penalty kick should be awarded.

When a defending player is ordered off the field for violent conduct, such as kicking or striking an opponent within the penalty area, the referee has the power to award a penalty kick.

Players who do not retire to the proper distance when a free kick is taken must be cautioned and on a repetition be ordered off. It is particularly requested of referees that attempts to delay the taking of a free kick by encroaching, should be treated as serious misconduct.

Straight Left Aids In Upright Swing

By SOL MEITZGER

As a general rule, a tall player has an advantage in length over the shorter one, the arc of whose swing must necessarily be flatter. Miss Enid Wilson, British women's champion, is an example. At Buffalo she was extremely long off the tee. She is over six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Quinlan brings out the fact that an upright swing is accomplished primarily by taking the club back with the straight left arm. If you let the right arm go back too abruptly, and in consequence hit down upon the ball, all this leads to the conclusion that the upright swing is not difficult to execute if you take the club back in orthodox fashion. To-morrow—Quinlan on the stance.

AWARDING OF PENALTY KICK IN FOOTBALL
Reasons For Granting and Method of Taking Spot Shot Are Described

In the event of any intentional infringement—kicking, tripping, striking, jumping at, handling, holding, pushing, back charging or violent or dangerous charging—by the defending side within the penalty area, the referee shall award the opponents a penalty kick.

This shall be taken from the penalty mark, which is a spot centrally situated, and twelve yards from the goal line, under the following conditions: All players, with the exception of the player taking the penalty kick and the opponents' goalkeeper, shall be outside the penalty area and at least ten yards from where the kick is to be taken.

The opponents' goalkeeper shall not advance beyond his goal line and the ball must be kicked forward. The ball shall be in play when the kick is taken, and a goal may be scored from a penalty kick, but the ball shall not be again played by the kicker until it has been played by another player.

SHALL AWARD FREE KICK
Should it be necessary, time of play shall be extended to allow the penalty kick being taken. If the ball is not kicked forward or if it is played a second time by the player who takes the penalty kick before it is played by another player, a free kick shall be awarded to the opposite side.

The referee may refrain from putting the provisions of this law into effect in cases where he is satisfied that by ordering them to be given the opposing team would be giving an advantage to the offending side. If, when the penalty kick is taken, the ball passes between the goal posts, under the bar, the goal shall not be nullified by reason of any infringement by the defending side.

The international board of June 14, 1930, says the word "stand" means that the goalkeeper must not move his feet until the penalty kick has been taken. If, on taking the penalty kick, the ball rebounds from the goal posts or crossesbar and is played by the kicker a second time, a free kick must be awarded. STRONG DRAMA OPENS TO-DAY AT DOMINION

"The Squaw Man" Deals With Racial Inter-marriage and Tells Dramatic Story

Cecil B. DeMille's M-G-M production, "The Squaw Man," which is showing at the Dominion Theatre, presents admirably in talking picture form one of the three most successful plays the stage has known. The other two are "Ben Hur" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." With a magnificent investiture of old English castles and authentic Arizona scenery, "The Squaw Man" tells vividly and with full regard for the new talkie technique, Edwin Milton Royle's story of an Englishman who leaves his country, taking on his shoulders a disgrace which belongs to another, becoming an Arizona ranch owner, and the husband of an Indian. The situation, which has gripped audience unfailingly since William Faversham introduced the play in 1903, is the arrival of the girl he loved in England, to find him the father of a seven-year-old boy, half Apache of English nobility, half-Apache Indian.

"East of Borneo" to Open Here To-morrow

Though she came from Mexico to the United States to appear in Spanish pictures, and did play leading roles in a number of them, Lupita Tovar is now playing her first English-speaking part in "East of Borneo." Universal's unusual Far Eastern drama which opens an engagement at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. Featured roles in this strange production are played by Ross Hamilton and Charles Bickford.

CAPITOL THEATRE
The notorious old Pastime Club of Manhattan's East Side, in all its sort of glory, springs into full bloom on the screen in Radio Pictures' "Young Donovan's Kid" starring Richard Dix, now on the Capitol screen.
An exact replica of the infamous rendezvous for killers, thieves and ruffians of New York's tenorline in the halcyon days before the gin era, is shown.
The gloomy cob-webbed doors of the club are wide open. Rag-time strains of "Everybody's Doing It," "Alexander's Rag Time Band," "Good Old Summer Time," and other bygone pieces, rend the air.

OBJECTIVES OF JUNIOR CHAMBER

Development of Canadian Films and Radio Will Be Among New Aims

Agricultural Group Will Endeavor to Establish Cattle Market

Setting up a programme of activities of national and Island interest, members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, at their special meeting in the chamber's lounge room yesterday evening embarked upon four new objectives. One aimed to stimulate the Canadian and British film industry with the ultimate object of having productions taken here. Another sought to improve the radio industry of Canada. A third aimed to better agricultural facilities for Vancouver Island, and a fourth was a move to see if the American Legion would consider holding its annual convention in Victoria some time in the near future.

Following out a suggestion of J. Browning that the chamber take action to see if the circulation of Canadian and British-made films could be boosted in Victoria, R. Chave told the meeting he had been informed the Attorney-General had stated a quota law would be enforced regarding "shorts" which would compel all theatres to show a certain number of Canadian-made production.

INTEREST BRITISH FILM FIRM
He said the Attorney-General had also communicated with F. P. Burden, Agent-General for British Columbia in London, asking him to see if a British concern would co-operate with Victoria interests to have pictures taken here.
Mr. Chave was named chairman of a committee to go further into the matter.
A move originally designed to promote a radio show eventually grew into a motion aimed to improve radio conditions throughout Canada with regard to production programmes and wave lengths. J. Browning was appointed chairman of a committee to secure data on the proposal.
On the suggestion of Leslie Osborne, the newly appointed agricultural group, under the chairmanship of Clyde Ballantyne, will inquire into the possibility of organizing a cattle buying and trading market in Victoria where Island stockmen may purchase or exchange animals for breeding purposes.

SEEK BIG CONVENTION
Anthony Jones suggested the group see if it could induce the American Legion to hold its annual convention in Victoria in the near future. He was delegated a committee to convey secure information on the project.
Reports were given during the evening by Frank Partridge, who sketched the activities of the Canadian Products group, stressing the action taken to popularize the good made in the Dominion. He outlined in detail the various means by which this work had been accomplished.
John Baxter, chairman of the effective speaking group, told the gathering his body had been the most regularly attended and one of the most active in the Junior chamber. He outlined the debates held during the year and stated the group had been active in giving publicity to Fire Prevention Week in the schools of the city.
George Beck, president of the Junior chamber, occupied the chair and introduced new members.

DUMBELLS PLAY AT ROYAL SOON

Ross Hamilton Returning With All Male Show in Latest Revue "As You Were"

"As You Were," the thirteenth annual revue of the Dumbells in Canada, will be the attraction at the Royal Victoria Theatre for three days, commencing Monday evening, November 9.

The Dumbells have changed back to their original idea of an all-men overseas revue, after three years of glorifying Canada's girls. There is no doubt that a girl and music revue is a delight, and it is to be hoped that Captain Plunkett follows his intention of producing a big musical show, in which the girls will be featured as Christmas, but the Dumbells are not, and never should be, a girl show. All the splendid traditions pertaining to their origin and their success as a theatrical troupe after the war are lost when they depart from the all-men line-up. The cast of "As You Were" is headed by the three original stars, Al Plunkett, Ross Hamilton and "Red" Newman, ably aided and abetted by such favorites as Glenn Allan, Don Romaine, "Scotty" Morrison, Joe Carr, Curly Brown, a singing quartette and a crooning trio, and Captain M. W. Plunkett and his Dumbells orchestra, a brilliant musical group of ten stellar musicians.

Although "As You Were" is modelled closely along the lines of their first successes, the Dumbells have not peevish by request or otherwise, any of the songs, sketches, or other bits of any previous presentation. The current offering is entirely new.

Splendid Cast Seen In "Mothers Cry" Now At Coliseum Theatre

Dorothy Peterson, Formerly on N.Y. Stage, Popular in Stirring New Picture

During the filming of "Mothers Cry," which is currently running at the Coliseum Theatre, people working on the picture were treated to some real, old-fashioned slang. A few of the choice bits heard on the "Mothers Cry" set were, "It's a crackerjack," "What a corker," "That's a humdinger," etc.
"Mothers Cry" is First National's screen adaptation of Helen Grace Carlisle's novel of the same name. The part of the mother is played by Dorothy Peterson, who comes to the screen from a successful career on the New York stage. With Miss Peterson in a singularly strong cast are David Manners, Helen Chandler, Edward Woods, Evelyn Knapp, and Pat O'Malley.

Scottish Concert Company to Give Programme Monday

The Scottish Concert Company, direct from the music halls of England and Scotland, will present an entertainment in the Shrine Auditorium, Monday evening next. The programme will be different from anything heard in recent years. Miss Mary McMahon, dramatic soprano, is considered to be the peer of all Scottish singers in dramatic interpretation. Miss Louise Graham, an attractive figure, is the holder of hundreds of prizes in dancing contests. She is equally gifted in her playing of the bagpipes, while Alec Kelmien, comedian, is well known throughout the British Empire and United States, as a sweet singer, with all the piquant humor of the Scot. He will be heard in some of his own original compositions. Completing this gifted quartette is Miss Doris Kimball, pianist and accompanist, who knits the whole programme into ensemble excellence.

Alberni

Alberni, Oct. 28.—Miss Waller of the teaching staff of the Indian residential school had as her guests over the week-end her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Waller of Victoria, her sisters, Marjory and Ila Mae, and her brother, Morran.
At an executive meeting of the women's auxiliary held on Friday it was decided to postpone the rummage sale and home cooking arranged for November 5 indefinitely.

Jordan River

Mrs. C. Lindner of Port Renfrew and Mrs. R. G. Gordon spent the week-end in Jordan River.
Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Bough and family went into Victoria on Saturday to attend the Pearson-Parker wedding.
Miss M. Samuelson of Victoria visited here on Sunday.
Mrs. D. J. Walker and Mrs. L. Patt visited Victoria on Saturday.

English Comedy To Play For Week At Coliseum Theatre

The British international picture coming to the Coliseum next Saturday introduces to Victorians a famous English comedian—Leslie Henson—one of the most phenomenal successes of the London stage in recent years. He makes his screen debut in the uproarious farce, "A Warm Corner," which ran for over a year in London. This picture has been voted a success by all the leading critics and the staid London Daily Telegraph said it was "one more success for British pictures and a riot of laughter." Included in an all-star English comedy cast is the old-time musical comedy favorite Connie Ediss, who has been amusing the public for over thirty years.

COLUMBIA THEATRE
The sartorial splendor of Jay Eaton has long been the cause of envy and despair among his actor associates. Eaton is not only known as the niftiest dresser along the Hollywood Hi-Lite, but is actually consulted for tips upon "What—well-dressed man will wear" by certain magazine columnists. Eaton is playing the role of an air bandit in "The Sky Raiders" the Columbia picture showing to-day at the Columbia Theatre.

CHARMING HOME—NICE LOCATION
We have just been instructed to sell a very comfortable and distinctive home, containing all modern conveniences, such as beautiful oak floors, hot water heating and instantaneous domestic hot water supply. This home is in a very nice condition throughout; is very well constructed and fitted with copper weather strips. The design is charming, with a beautiful large drawing room, about 25 ft. x 12 ft. The house itself is not large, as there are only six rooms, but the location is on a corner lot in a very nice district and only a step to car line. This will be well worth your trouble to investigate—$1600.

CHAPTER XI

"It," said Mary, "all this should be true, why don't you arrest the other man—this hard cookie you speak of? Eddie was just a boy. Nineteen. He didn't know his way around, and that man did. He's to blame, as much as Eddie—more so. Why don't you arrest him?"

"I'm willing," Kane said, sardonically. "Why don't you tell me where he is?"

Mary perceived that this was humor, but she was not amused.

"Surely, the car—"

"There's a hundred Lormors like that in this part of the country, most of 'em parked in garages you have to have an engraved, gold-edged invitation to get into. My theory is the man's society blood. I wouldn't be surprised if that Lormor was parked in some Park Avenue garage right this minute, and the man that owns it dining at the Ritz."

"It was a Lormor that brought whoever came to rob the house that night, too. Doesn't that look as if the murderer wanted Eddie killed?"

"Yeah, I know. We thought of that. It didn't do it. Look here, if anybody was trying to kill your brother to keep his mouth shut, would he take a chance on knocking him down with a car? It would have taken perfect timing to be at that particular spot at that particular time. No, the kid was rattled and got hit, that's all. It's them big cars that shoot through like that—some Wall Street guy tryin' to make time up a side street, beating the lights at a corner where there was no cop. Might as well be a Rolls or a Mercedes—any of them big cars. It happened to be a Lormor, that was all. There was a uniform driver, like they all have. Pure coincidence, Miss Harkness."

"It had looked so damnably clear to her before—the cars being the same, that deadly nerve, just as Eddie was crossing the street to speak to her, to tell her the whole story. Now it seemed a dim, impractical theory. And she could never prove it, now. Eddie's lips were sealed. Only one man knew—the man in the Lormor car."

She would find that man and make him talk. She would get from him the true story, somehow. If no one else would do it, she would do it herself. The absurdity of this fierce resolve did not occur to her. She was too grimly serious.

Oh, if only Eddie were here—Her eyes filled with tears.

Oh, if only Eddie were here—Her eyes filled with tears.

Oh, if only Eddie were here—Her eyes filled with tears.

the other fellow, the one he owed money to? Why hasn't anyone found him? He's the one who's really to blame!"

"What do you know about the other fellow?" Kane asked suspiciously.

"The same as you do. That if Eddie did it—and I don't believe it for a minute—he was made to do it by the man he owed money to."

Kane smiled tolerantly. "I wouldn't say that, Miss Harkness. That's only theory. You've nothing to back it up."

"Haven't I? Then I'll find something. I'm going to prove that Eddie had no part in that crime if it's the last thing I ever do." Her small fist beat the table by way of emphasis.

Kane pursed his lips. "As you please, Miss Harkness," he said. "But I think you're making a big mistake. You're a very lucky girl."

Mary moved impatiently, but he fixed her with an earnest eye and continued. "You're no relation to the Jupiters, are you?" he asked abruptly.

"Why no," Mary replied, in surprise. Kane nodded his head sagely. "Well, for an outsider, you're sitting in the lap of luck, if you only knew it."

Those two old people set great store by you, and I understand one of the last acts of that old lady's life was to ask her lawyer to draw up adoption papers for you. That son of hers turned out wild, and you're all they had. What the old man will do now his wife's gone, is a question. But the way I get it, he don't believe you had a thing to do with it—thinks it was all your brother's doing."

"He wants to do the best he can by you. He knows those in-laws-to-be of yours, the Jupiters, and what stuffs they are. He knows too much scandal right now could blow your romance higher than a kite. Now, why don't you let it pass. Your brother got it bad, and you're all coming, but don't let that spoil your life."

The storm of resentment that had racked Mary during Kane's revelations had left her more calmly purposeful than she had ever been in her life. With icy hands she took out her powder compact, and carefully dusted her nose, set her hat at the correct angle, snapped her purse shut, put on her gloves and stood up.

"Thank you for all you have done, Inspector," she told him with a chilly little smile and went out quickly.

Her abrupt departure left Inspector James Kane considerably nonplussed.

The haute Marie had donned for his crushing defeat as soon as she left the police officers' presence, however. As she went down the stairs to the street floor her spirits dropped rapidly.

"Well, well! Little children of the storm," observed a familiar voice. It was the reporter, Bowen. "Say, I've been looking everywhere for you. Got one or two little matters I'd like to talk over with you. You wouldn't have lunch with me, would you?"

"I don't feel much like it, thanks," Mary answered indifferently.

"We could get a cab and go uptown," he offered, "or we could drop in next door—if you don't mind eating in an abandoned saloon." Then as her face did not clear, "I'll perk you up. Better come!" His antics were irritatingly silly; Mary laughed and agreed.

The rain was coming down in sheets. "Get an umbrella! Wait a minute," Bowen turned back and Mary heard his inquiring bellow echoing through the judicial corridors. "Hey! Anybody got an umbrella?" He came back quickly with a topcoat over his arm.

"No luck," he reported, "but body trying to do it. He covered her with it, hat and all, turned up his own coat collar, and they ventured forth. Several sprightly leaps landed them across the street, and in the dingy entry of a small one-time saloon, from which the smell of hot food poured like steam. It was dark inside and the only waiter, a repellent-looking creature in greasy black, stared at his pretty visitor as if a woman's presence in the place were rare indeed.

"When they had ordered and sent him away, Bowen apologized. "This is an awful dump, but it's a good place to talk. Take your things off!" He took their wet coats, and the one he had loaned her, and his own, and hung them to dry over the back of the two vacant chairs at their table. Then he looked about cautiously. The place was empty except for two men who rose to depart, toothpicks in mouth.

"Dicks," Bowen explained. "They are getting out." Mary kept her eyes on her plate to avoid their bold, admiring glances. After they had gone out, Bowen preened himself extravagantly. "Hmmm!" said he, "guess my rating with those birds is much."

"Yes, it is a heavy rain," Uncle Wiggily agreed. "And I am afraid we shall have a rainy day to-morrow."

Which was true enough. For after the rabbit gentleman had gone back to bed to dream about playing tag with a circus clown dog he awakened again. But this time it was daylight and no longer night, though no sun was shining, for it was still raining.

The drops pelted down on the bungalow roof like dried peas falling out of a bag from the grocery store, and after Uncle Wiggily had eaten his breakfast he tried to get up with a not very gratifying result. He went to the door and looked out.

"My goodness!" he exclaimed. "It is raining so hard the children cannot go to school to-day."

"Can't go to school?" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "Oh, Wiggily, do you know what you are saying?"

"Of course I do, my dear," answered Mr. Longears. "But what is the matter?" he asked, for he saw that again his wife was worried.

"Do you know what it means," she asked, "a whizzer, to whizzer all our forty-seven sixteen rabbit boys and girls cooped up in this small bungalow on a rainy day when they can't go out to play? Do you know what it means, Wiggily?"

"Why, no, I don't exactly," he answered. "What's the answer?"

"It means," whispered Mrs. Longears, "that Nurse Jane and I will get the fidgety bidgets trying to amuse the children. They'll want to do this and want to do that, and they can't go out and they'll swarm all over the place and get under foot and—oh, listen to that!" she cried clapping her paws over her ears. "There's a rainy day for you!"

Strange shouts, yells, hoots, calls, whistles and roars all of a sudden filled the bungalow. Even Mr. Longears looked surprised.

"What can that noise be?" he murmured. He soon found out, and you shall also in the next story, which will be about Uncle Wiggily's steamboat. And I hope the umbrella doesn't catch cold in its ribs when it goes out with the rubber boots to buy some honey cake for breakfast.

up 100 per cent! They'd give their gold teeth to know who you are." He wagged his eyebrows archly and settled his tie with a flourish. "Ah, Bowen, the woman-killer!"

Mary said, "You're funny. What're you doing it for—to cheer me up?"

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Rainy Day

By HOWARD E. GARIS

All of a sudden, in the middle of the darkness one night, Uncle Wiggily heard a noise outside his bedroom door. It was having a funny dream about picking strawberries off a Christmas tree and feeding them to a little rag doll riding on top of an elephant. In the dream Uncle Wiggily had the last strawberry to the elephant himself, who curled his hoosey nose trunk around it and stuffed it into his mouth. And then the noise outside his door awakened Mr. Longears.

"Is that you, Mr. Elephant?" asked the rabbit gentleman, for the dream seemed very real, though he was no longer sleeping.

"No, this isn't an elephant!" said a voice. "I hope I don't walk as heavy as that!"

"Oh, then, maybe you are the rag doll," went on Mr. Longears.

"Oh, Wiggily, why do you call me names when I am so worried?" asked a sad voice, and then right away Uncle Wiggily knew it was his wife outside his door and she had made the noise that awakened him and brought an end to his dream.

"Excuse me, my dear," said Mr. Longears jumping into his bathrobe and slippers. "But what are you worried about? He opened his door and saw his wife standing there, also in her bathrobe and slippers and holding a flashlight in one paw. In the other paw she held a small iron. "What worried you?" asked the gentleman rabbit.

"I heard a queer noise," answered Mrs. Longears. "It sounded like somebody trying to get into our hollow-stump bungalow."

"What sort of noise was it?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know as he looked around the room for something to throw in case he had to.

"It was a sort of a thumpity, bumpity, pitter-patter sort of noise," replied the rabbit lady. "Listen and you can hear it now."

Uncle Wiggily listened and then he said with a laugh: "Why, that noise is only rain on the roof!"

"Rained on the roof?" exclaimed Mrs. Longears in surprise. "Oh, so it is!" she went on as she listened to the sound of the pattering drops. "But," she said, "it must be raining very hard to make such a loud noise. That's what made me get up out of bed to tell you."

"I'm glad you did," spoke Mr. Longears kindly. "For I would not want you to be worried by a noise in the night. And he was very kind and good, though I know some rabbits who, if awakened by their wives hearing a noise in the night, would not even get out of bed. But Uncle Wiggily was a bit different."

"Well, as long as it's only rain I will no longer worry, but go back to bed," said the lady rabbit. "But I'm sure it must be raining harder than I ever heard it rain before to make so much noise."

"Yes, it is a heavy rain," Uncle Wiggily agreed. "And I am afraid we shall have a rainy day to-morrow."

Why Can't Husbands and Wives Avoid Friction by Letting Their Partners Do Their Own Way Without Argument Inasmuch as They Are Going to Do It Anyway—And Why Must They Quarrel Publicly?

WHAT makes them do it?

What makes husbands and wives stage their quarrels in public? Matrimony is a dull affair and if it breaks the monotony to have a daily scrap let them go to it and heaven forbid that we should interfere with their pleasure. But common courtesy to strangers demands that they should have enough consideration for our feelings to do their fighting in private, with the doors shut and locked and the keyhole stopped up and the window shades down and with no innocent bystanders compelled to be an eye witness to the massacre.

There is no more painful and embarrassing situation in the world than to assist at one of these family brawls in which the husband and wife hurl epithets and recriminations at each other and shamelessly drag every skeleton out of its closet and rattle its bones and tell each other home truths that their tongues should be blasted for uttering. Yet it is a common thing to go riding with a married couple who get into such a violent altercation over as simple a thing as the turn of a road that you think that either the back-seat chauffeur will murder the driver or that the driver will stop long enough to strangle the back-seat chauffeur.

And it is an even commoner thing for husbands and wives to say things to each other across a card table that would make a brazen image blush with shame for them and for them to spoil an evening for a guest by getting into a row over the seats at a theatre or the menu at a restaurant and calling upon the luckless outsider to referee it.

Now why do men and women, who are otherwise well bred and well mannered and observant of the conventions that prevail in polite society, outrage our sense of decency by having their domestic squabbles abroad and dragging us into them?

Why can't women ever accept a thing as final and forget it? Why can't they say a thing once and let it go at that? Why must they always harp on the same string?

Every wife knows that there are certain subjects which to her husband are like a red rag to a mad bull. They are just as good for a hot argument and a fight as a stick of dynamite. But does she avoid them? She does not. Does she gumshoe warily around the topics that she is perfectly aware will bring on a shindig? Far from it. She drags them in by the ears or the tail and they have their millionth battle over religion or politics or whether, if they ever should happen to have a baby boy, they would send him to college when he is grown.

There are women who wage a forty-year war against their husbands smoking, although they know perfectly well they will never stop the poor man from even lighting a single cigarette. There are wives who never let their husbands eat a meal in peace without telling them everything they like so bad for their digestions. There are wives who never let their husbands go to a lodge meeting without a scene. Yet they accomplish nothing by their protests, except to set up an irritation in their husbands' minds and make them determined not to be henpecked and to go on smoking and belonging to their lodges and eating what they please.

Why can't the wives realize this and see that they can avoid friction by letting their husbands do their own way without argument, inasmuch as they are going to do it anyway?

Why can't mothers quit nagging their children? They know that it doesn't do a bit of good to tell Johnny for the millionth time not to do that and that it makes their adolescent boys and girls perfectly furious to be put through a questionnaire about their every movement, yet they keep on doing it.

Tom and Mary can't start out of the house without mother stopping them to ask them where they are going and whom they are going with and when they expect to be back and to give them a thousand warnings that makes them determined never to tell her anything that they can help and to let her spy on them and find out if she can.

Even the stupidest mothers know that their nagging drives their children away from them and alienates their confidence, and yet they persist in doing it.

Why do husbands think it clever and witty to disparage their wives? You would think that a man wouldn't want the general public to think he had married a fool, for she is his pick and that would be a reflection on his judgment and taste.

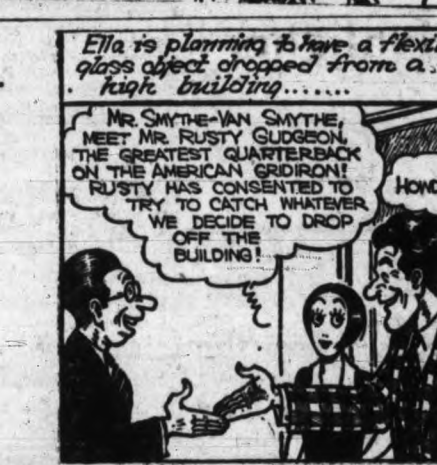

As a matter of fact, most men have a profound respect for their wives' good sense, but if you will notice you will observe a man rarely mentions anything intelligent that his wife has done. He always tells about some fool mistake she has made.

Furthermore, nearly every man's best story, the one that he tells to set the table in a row at a dinner party, virtually always centres around some weakness of his wife's or some blunder that she has made and that he has dressed up until it makes it a scream.

Many is the time that we are all called upon to witness the helpless writhing of some poor wife whose husband is holding her up as a figure of fun to be jeered at until we have felt like taking the carving knife to him instead of laughing at his wit.

Why do people do these things?

Ancient Money

COINS OF THE CHINESE

We are in the custom of thinking that coins must be of circular shape, but that need not be the case. In Holland square-shaped coins are used along with round coins. Some countries have made use of oblong coins.

Ancient Chinese money. The "coin" at lower right is more than 2,700 years old.

Far back in history it is believed that tools were used as money in China, that knives, spades and the like took the place of coins.

More than 2,700 years ago the Chinese began using pieces of bronze as money. These "bronze" pieces were shaped like knives, spades, pruning-hooks and so on. It is strange to think of "coins" of that kind being used as money, but so it was.

As "small change" the Chinese of that period used cowry shells. The "cowry" is a small sea animal, which has a pretty shell. It is related to the snail.

Three centuries after the Chinese began using knife-money, round coins were minted. These coins were made of bronze and weighed half an ounce apiece. They had holes at the centre, making it simple to place them on strings.

From time to time an emperor would "debase" the coinage. This means that he would order metal of less value to be used in making the coins supposed to be of bronze. Another trouble came from forgers, who copied the money of the emperor and tried to pass it in trade. In one case a clever forger was caught but was not punished. Instead he was given a job in the Chinese mint!

The Chinese appear to have been the first people who ever used paper money. About the year 800, paper money was issued, and it remained in use through the centuries.

During the past century, the Chinese began to mint silver and copper coins. After China became a republic, coins bearing the image of Sun Yat Sen were issued. Within recent years a silver dollar with Chinese words on one side and English words on the other was issued. The English words read: "The Republic of China—One Dollar."

DE VALERA SPEAKS PLAINLY

Dublin, Irish Free State, Oct. 28.—Eamon de Valera today told delegates to the Pianna Fall convention the first act of a Pianna Fall government in Ireland would be removal from the constitution of the oath of allegiance to the King.

Such a government's attitude toward relations with Great Britain would be one of non-co-operation, he said. Great Britain persisted in enforcing the terms of the treaty of 1922.

POET HAVING SCIENTIFIC VIEW NEEDED

Era Wants a Poet Who Can Reconcile Concepts of Science With His Art

Astronomy of Poets Dealt With By W. E. Harper Before Local Society

Had Milton lived in the twentieth century, with its evolutionary attitude to the universe, it was improbable that he would have been any "Paradise Lost"; certainly the great epic poem would have lost most of its dramatic force and significance, said W. E. Harper of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory staff here, in the course of his lecture, "The Astronomy of the Poets," before the local branch of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada in Victoria College yesterday evening.

Before Milton was born Copernicus had smashed the old Ptolemaic theory of an earth-centred universe, but Milton made use of the old system, not because he was convinced of its rightness, but because its cosmogony served to "localize" the various happenings in heaven and hell, which he describes in "Paradise Lost," the lecturer pointed out.

The poet who in any considerable way first tried to reconcile science with his art was Tennyson. Tennyson, Mr. Harper said, even anticipated Darwin, but in his later work he did not keep abreast of the newer developments, perhaps because he was poet laureate to Queen Victoria, because old age had brought on a type of conservatism and because he did not think the time was yet ripe for the poet to commit himself to the newest scientific concepts.

WANT ANOTHER MILTON

"Thus there is a great field to be cultivated," observed the speaker. With the spectroscopic and other scientific marvels revealing distant worlds and worlds within the tiniest atom, there was a need for a twentieth century Milton with the scientific acumen, the poetic insight and the master craftsmanship to mould a work of art which would be to the present what "Paradise Lost" was to the past.

The biblical poets received first consideration in Mr. Harper's dealing with the astronomy of the poets.

"The Hebrew conception of the universe was not scientific in the modern sense of the term, but through a contemplation of the heavens they were led into a purer religion and a more perfect poetry," the speaker considered.

IN MOURNING THRONGS AT EDISON BIER

Filling silently into the ivy-covered laboratory where the body of Thomas Alva Edison lay at rest among the symbols of his life's work, mourners are pictured here as they arrived in quest of a last glimpse of the great inventor. Famous men and women mingled with lesser folk in the throngs that passed the bier in the red brick building at West Orange, N.J., where Edison had worked for the last forty-five years.

Their idea of the universe as a kind of structure, with heaven curving down on either side to touch the earth, with the "lower waters" moving under the earth and the "bottomless pit" beneath everything, was exemplified in many biblical sayings, such as: "The path of the just is as the shining of the sun, the windows of heaven," "He hanged the world upon nothing."

Mention was made of a meteor in Vergil's "Aeneid," while the fourteenth century "Divine Comedy" of Dante had the hero going through purgatory, chaos, hell and heaven.

Dante put his friends in heaven, his critics in purgatory and his enemies in hell," the speaker added.

About 300 references to astronomy were contained in the works of Shakespeare (1564-1616). Shakespeare's cosmology was Ptolemaic, though he was in his teens when Copernicus propounded his new theory. The Ptolemaic system held that the heavenly bodies, each in its own crystalline shell or sphere, rotated in concentric circles about the earth. The soft gliding of one shell over another produced a heavenly strain of music, the "music of the spheres."

In "The Merchant of Venice" is the following passage: "There's not the smallest orb that thou beholdest, but in its motion like an angel sings, in 'Twelfth Night' is: 'I had rather you to solicit than music from the spheres'; in King Lear, Puck says: 'I'll put a girdle round the earth in forty minutes'; in Julius Caesar is: 'I am constant as the northern star' (which is far from being constant)."

SHAKESPEARE'S VISION

But though Shakespeare's astronomy was crude and though he made use of much astrologic "data," he nevertheless, did not believe in the scientific truth of what he wrote, the speaker considered. It was even possible he had foreknowledge of the more enlightened theory of gravitation, for in "Troilus and Cressida" is the passage:

"The strong base and building of my love Is as the very centre of the earth Drawing all things to it."

In Shakespeare's day, certain planets had astrologic significances. If one was born under Mars one was quarrelsome and boastful; if under Saturn, one was weak and feeble; if under Venus, warm and loving.

Though Shakespeare could make his characters say: "It is the stars, the stars above us that govern our conditions," and "at their birth good stars were opposite," he did not, the speaker declared, attach any great belief to astrology and could have some fun at the expense of the practice.

Thus Prince Henry exclaims to Falstaff, when he surprises him flirting, "Saturn and Venus this year in conjunction" and Edmund in "King Lear" says: "This is the excellent foppery of the world, that when we are sick in fortune we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon and the stars."

Cassius reminds Brutus that the fault is not in our stars, but in ourselves, that we are underlings."

In observing that Shakespeare was credited with knowing so much and could foreshadow the findings of the most modern physicians when he wrote of the "medical eye" of the sun, Mr. Harper said that some people would make him a radio fan. For the following lines appear: "Anthony and Cleopatra"—Ah! stand by. "Coriolanus"—Take up some other station. "Taming of the Shrew"—His lecture will be done ere you have tuned. "All's Well That Ends Well"—Then my dial goes not true. "As You Like It"—'Tis no matter how it be in tune, so it makes noise enough.

"Henry IV"—As those musicians that shall play to you hang in the air a thousand leagues hence.

Milton was rhapsodic in his descriptions of the heavens. Mr. Harper continued. He, too, used the Ptolemaic system, though the Copernican theory was a number of years old; still, however, stoutly opposed by the church, which imprisoned the astronomer Galileo, but, unlike Shakespeare, who was capable of referring to the heavens as "a foul congregation of vapors," Milton brought to his ethereal writings an austerity and purpose which made them memorable.

The speaker did not consider Milton had a firm conviction of the truth of his cosmology, but used it as a means to an end. A suggestion of "playing to posterity" could be seen in the words he makes Adam say to the angel (book 8): "I wonder how Nature, wise and frugal, could commit such disproportion," thus suggesting there was something more to the universe than the concentric circles of Ptolemy.

TENNYSON'S OUTLOOK

Tennyson was the first major poet to bring a truly scientific outlook to his writings. This was most evident in his earlier work, the speaker considered. His physico-biologic attitude could be seen in the following passages:

"The Princess"—This world was once a fluid wave of light. "In Memoriam"—The solid earth on which we tread In tracts of fluid heat began. There is in "In Memoriam" the following: There rolls the deep where grew the tree; Oh earth, what changes thou hast seen! There, where the long street roars, Hath been The stillness of the central sea.

"The Dawn"—We are far from the noon of man, there is time for the race to grow. "Maud"—So many million of ages have gone to the making of man. "In Memoriam"—Move upwards, working out the beast, And let the ape and tiger die. "The Dawn"—What will our children be The men of a hundred thousand, a million summers away? Even though Tennyson, passing through a period, the speaker suggested, similar to the present election period in England, could write—Raving politics, never at rest. As this poor Earth's pole history runs What is it all but a trouble of ants In the gleam of a million million of suns?

Nevertheless he could also write: Yet I doubt not through the ages one Increasing purpose runs And the thoughts of men are widened With the process of the suns.

THRONGS ATTEND LIPTON RITES

In stirring tribute to "the world's best beloved sportsman," thousands of persons thronged St. George's Church and the street outside when the funeral of Sir Thomas Lipton was held in Glasgow, Scotland. WILL UNTANGLE OWN PROBLEMS

Great Britain Capable of Solving Her Difficulties, Says Dr. C. Davies

Although Great Britain was suffering from unemployment, she had never had as many men employed as she had now. This problem had arisen through a lack of emigration from that land. And whatever her difficulties were, the fundamental character of the British people would see the land through. There were views expressed by Dr. Clem Davies in his address before the Round Table Club at its dinner in the Empress Hotel yesterday.

The speaker traced the developments which had led up to the present unemployment crisis. Dealing with the political heads of that land, he commended their strength of mind. "In years to come, people will look back and marvel at the way Great Britain emerged successfully from these times," he said.

It was the duty of Canada and other dominions to co-operate with the Mother Country in its time of stress. Dr. Davies declared, Canada, he continued, owed much of her success to the work England had done in the Dominion.

He criticized the stand of people formerly residents of Great Britain, who lightly suggested remedies for that country, saying it was the most "forward looking of nations" and capable of solving its own difficulties.

Germany's collapse had, in a large measure, been responsible for Britain's troubles, he declared, enlarging on his statement by way of explanation. The inability of the former country to breaking down the financial structure, not only of herself, but also of Britain.

Lake Cowichan

Lake Cowichan, Oct. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Chester Stanlake and family, who have been residents of the lake for the last year, are leaving the lake to reside in Victoria.

An enjoyable card party and dance was held in the Community Hall on Saturday evening. The prizes for bridge were won by Mrs. E. M. Bailey and W. Tiesell. The prizes for court whist went to Mrs. B. Alexander and D. Madill.

George Simpson of Victoria spent the week-end at the lake. Magistrate Beaver-Pole of Nanaimo spent the week-end on his houseboat here.

On Friday evening Miss G. E. Lomas entertained with three tables of bridge at her home. The prizes for bridge were won by Miss Velma Miller and Charles Walters of Youbou. The prizes for games went to Miss Ellen Atkins, Miss Madge McIntyre and Mr. Trevor Green. Refreshments were served at midnight. The following were the invited guests. Misses Regan, Ellen Atkins, Lucile Gillespie, Velma Miller, Madge McIntyre, Charles Walters, J. LeBreton, Trevor Green, Joe Tassen, W. E. Fraser and Dr. McHaffie.
